THE OUTLOOK

By THE HON. MRS. CHARLES TUFTON

Headquarters Commissioner.

"It is to the young that the Future belongs. To the children I would like to send a special message. Let me say this to each of them: the King is speaking to YOU. I ask you to remember that in days to come you will be the citizens of a great Empire. As you grow up always keep this thought before you and when the time comes be ready and proud to give to your country the service of your work, your mind and your heart."

AFTER hearing this wonderful message, there seems so little that anyone can say. These words cannot fail to inspire and encourage all those of us who are working amongst the young. I count it an honour to be a citizen of this great Empire, and it is for us to do our best to prepare our Guides to be ready to answer the call.

There are many ways of serving our country; to few of us is it given to do anything spectacular. Everyone of us at different times has the opportunity to serve. I would like to say to our Guiders that I feel that they are doing yeoman service. The training of the young is arduous and there are many disappointments. But we can feel now, more than ever, that we are carrying out the King's wishes in that we are contributing what we can to help the children grow up into good and loyal citizens. To be loyal appears to be of paramount importance. There are so many different loyalties, and sometimes they conflict. First and foremost one must be loyal to one's own ideals. This is where Guiding may help, namely, in formulating and establishing ideals. In giving the young a code to act up to. There must be loyalty to one's home, to the work upon which one is engaged, to one's friends and companions. To be loyal—or faithful. This is the corner stone upon which the foundation of good citizenship is laid.

His Majesty has said that the future belongs to the young. In other words, the boys and girls of today are the men and women of to-morrow. The future is always somewhat in the lap of the gods. There are many extraneous influences which we cannot foresee, but we must be ready and proud to serve our country in our various ways. We must determine that the future shall

It is humbly asked that these Greetings may be received as examples of the loyal and respectful affection of the Girl Guides throughout the Empire who will try to do as His Majesty has bidden them in His message.

The above message, with others from various parts of Great Britain and the Dominions, was presented to the President, Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal, to be given to His Majesty The King.

be bright and look forward to it with courage and cheerfulness. We must train to enable ourselves to carry out our own allotted tasks to the best of our ability: in this manner we shall be contributing our mite. The Jubilee celebrations have knit us closer together, they have made us feel that we all belong to a great community. Hearing the King's voice has brought him very near to us and we shall proceed on our various ways with a feeling of deep gratitude towards him for his unfailing solicitude for, and interest in, the welfare of all his subjects. Let us hope that the young will guard the future which has been so specially committed to their care.

THE ULSTER RANGER CAMP

WE arrived at the gates of Lord Antrim's demesne at Glenarm, on Saturday, July 7th, and were met by the transport cars. They conveyed our luggage to the camp site, which was two and a half miles further on. Relieved of our kit, we enjoyed the walk through the woods, especially when we discovered that the road ran beside a river.

The thrill of camp had begun when the tents became visible through the trees on the far side of the river. After crossing the bridge, we were welcomed by the Commandant, who directed us to our respective groups.

The camp was divided into five groups of eleven, named after the Counties Antrim, Down, Derry, Armagh and Tyrone. The Guiders formed the Central group. The camp was run on the principle of the Government. The Commandant being the King, with the officers as her ministers, each group sending one representative as an M.P.

Already some of the tents had been pitched by early arrivals, but there was still plenty to be done. Each group had four tents and a store tent. The cooks were responsible for the catering. We were given a shopping book and price list, and allowed to spend 1s. a day per person. The store was open twice daily for an hour, when we had to purchase our stores for the day. It was great fun making out the menu and trying to keep to the 11s., which we managed quite well.

We had Colours at 8.45 and breakfast at 9 a.m. There was a cooks' meeting at 10 a.m. and parliament met at 10.45, when members arranged the programme for the day. Sessions were at 11 o'clock when we did badge work or anything we liked. Most of the Rangers were working for Hiker's or Pioneer's Badge. The hikers learnt to distinguish the various twigs and to cook in the open without utensils. The latter part was great fun. The pioneers found the making of gadgets very fascinating, and relieved the cooks of some of their work.

Dinner at 1 o'clock was followed by rest hour. Parliament was resumed and the programme for the afternoon was drawn up. There was bathing every afternoon at Glenarm. As a short cut we paddled across the river, and this was the scene of some very amusing incidents. As an example, one Ranger took a header into the river, although we were not allowed to bathe on account of the salmon. Those who were doing Hiker's Badge went hiking every afternoon. At night we had National Country Dancing, which was very popular. Then a camp fire when we learnt some new songs and different Guiders told us a story, after which we returned to our groups for supper. Lights out at 11 p.m.

Miss Buchanan, Commissioner for Rangers in Ulster, who was the Queen, unfortunately was unable to be at the camp, but she came to see us one afternoon. She gave us a splendid talk and then we had a discussion. It was unanimously agreed that there should be an Ulster Ranger Training Camp; of course, it cannot be held this year as the International Camp is being held in Ulster then. Later she inspected the camp and then had tea with the Guiders and M.P.s. When she left we lined up on the bridge and made an arch for her, then we gave three rousing cheers as she drove off.

On Wednesday most of the Rangers went for an excursion to the Glens of Antrim where they had a lovely walk through the Glens, arriving at the top they had their fortunes told by an old gypsy. Those who were left in camp did badge work and then had dinner with Central. One of the Guiders made a delicious cake in the reflector oven.

We had a fancy dress parade which was great fun. The best costume was two Rangers dressed up in groundsheets and a waterproof as a cow. One group went as a procession of Orangemen, complete with banner. De Valera and Hitler as well as a bridal party were also to be seen. Of course, there was a cook and a Sea Ranger was exceptionally well made up as an Indian. The procession was brought to an end by "Four Sensible Girls" in full uniform.

Visitors' day was on the 12th, which is a Bank Holiday in Ulster. Our friends and members of our companies came to see us. They were thrilled with all we had to show and tell them.

We had glorious weather until the day before camp broke up, when after breakfast we had a downpour. As each group had an extra tent we managed to keep fairly dry. In the afternoon the hikers went for their last hike. It was rather a hard test as it rained all day, but they arrived back at camp feeling conquerors.

Commandant—Mrs. Moody.

At camp fire, held in the marquee, on Friday (the last night) the central group invited the camp to supper. After supper we thanked the Commandant and Central for the wonderful time we had had and passed a vote of thanks to Lord Antrim for the use of the site. Like all "last nights" nobody was in bed at the proper hour, but in spite of it we were up with the larks to make the most of our last day.

By 11 a.m. we had struck camp. Those who lived far away started off home at about 11.15. The County Derry Rangers left at 3 p.m., and finally at 4.30 the Belfast Rangers left. Thus the 14th ended the most enjoyable camp to which we (the writers) have ever been. Now we are looking forward to the International Camp to be held in Ulster this year.

GUIDE SERVICE AT ST. GEORGE'S CHAPEL, WINDSOR CASTLE

SUNDAY, JUNE 23RD, 1935.

A Guide Service will be held at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, on Sunday, June 23rd, at 3 p.m., by kind invitation of the Dean and Chapter.

A thousand Commissioners, Guiders, Rangers and Guides, drawn from all over Great Britain, will attend, and Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal has promised to be present.

The camp, provided for those who are unable to accomplish the journey in a day, will be situated on the Household Brigade Sports Ground in Windsor Great Park. This has very kindly been lent by the Officer Commanding the Troops at Windsor.

Furthermore, permission has been given for the Guides to form up in the Riding School and Stable Yard, before proceeding to the service in the ancient Chapel, where the Knights of the Garter hang their swords, helmets and banners. Contingents must be assembled in the Riding School by one o'clock, or as soon after as possible.

County Commissioners have already chosen representatives from their counties to attend the Service.

Will parties who wish to obtain reduced fares, please write to Imperial Headquarters, 17, Buckingham Palace Road, London, S.W.1.

Will any County Commissioners who wish for further information and particulars, please write to The Hon. Mrs. Charles Tufton, at Imperial Headquarters.

Printed instructions and further information will be issued later to all County Commissioners.

THE LIFE GUARD CORPS OF THE ROYAL LIFE SAVING SOCIETY

NOW that the bathing, boating and camping season is here it is time to face once again the appalling annual loss of life through drowning accidents and to consider in what way the death toll, which, in Great Britain alone, averages 2,400 persons a year, can be reduced. In 1801 the Royal Life Saving Society was formed with the object of encouraging swimmers to learn how to save life from drowning by certain methods, and, what is just as important in many drowning accidents, the methods by which an apparently drowned person may be revived by the use of artificial respiration and correct after-treatment.

The Society has now created a new branch of its work known as the Life Guard Corps, and desires to enrol as members the vast number of people who have already qualified as efficient life savers, by having passed the Examination of the Bronze Medallion or higher awards of the Society. Only those who have passed these tests and who are over eighteen years of age will be accepted for membership, this is to ensure that the Corps is composed of members who are not only swimmers but who are efficient life savers with a thorough knowledge of the application of the Schafer method of Resuscitation.

Honorary Regional Representatives are being appointed throughout the country to administer various zones, their names and addresses may be obtained from the Head Office of the Society, and Corps members living in, or visiting seaside or riverside resorts, are requested to communicate with the Representative for that district who will be able to give the necessary information to members of the Corps as to the most suitable places where their services may be employed. It is not intended to make the time of duty arbitrary and members will be expected to spend only a short period watching bathers. It is hoped in time that the Corps will be large enough to provide every beach and river bathing place with an ample supply of Guards, and that the present tragic loss of life by drowning may be greatly reduced.

To assist in this work the Society have recently introduced an apparatus known as the Life Line, which is intended to be used as an auxiliary to the rescuer. It consists of a harness to which is attached a special ring, through which a length of line is allowed to run, at the end of the line a pneumatic float is attached; it is so arranged that the rescuer, if necessary, can make a surface dive without being in any way impeded by the apparatus, as soon as the rescuer returns to the surface and the shore end of the line is pulled, the pneumatic float automatically takes up a position at the back of the rescuer's head, so keeping his head and that of the rescued person well out of the water, whilst being pulled ashore. The Society are arranging for demonstrations of this apparatus from time to time, and Guiders are advised to endeavour to see these when they have the opportunity.

Anyone wishing to join the Life Guard Corps or to learn more of the Royal Life Saving Society, should write to the Headquarters of the Society at 8, Bayley Street, Bedford Square, London, W.C.1.

AN Extension and Lone Conference was held at Salisbury on April 27th and 28th under the secretaryship of Mrs. Lawrence, the Extension and Lone Secretary for Wiltshire, and the object of the Conference was to interest the public bodies and social workers in these branches of Guiding. Representatives of various public authorities and voluntary organisations were present at the open meeting on Saturday afternoon when the County President for Wiltshire, the Marchioness of Lansdowne, took the chair and in her opening remarks gave a very inspiring outline of the work for the handicapped and lonely. The Commissioner for the Extension Branch then spoke on the way that Guiding and the other organisations can and do co-operate for the welfare of the handicapped girls, each bringing something in to the work that only that organisation can give. Many questions were afterwards asked, so that interest seemed to be roused in the possibility of more closely working together. We regretted the absence of the Wiltshire County Commissioner, Lady Sybil Phipps, but Mrs. Stuart-Wortley, County Commissioner for Hampshire, was present at the Conference throughout and was a most helpful chairwoman at many of the sessions. Miss Sandeman spoke on the psychological value of handicrafts, Dr. Elizabeth Casson on occupational training, and Miss Landon, Inspector for the Board of Control, gave her point of view of mental deficient companies and the great value of this training.

EXTENSION GAMES.

Extension Guides have often very little general knowledge of home life, or of the cost of their clothing, daily food or many of the things they use every day. Therefore, the use of shop catalogues for games, as demonstrated at the Salisbury Conference, was a very useful idea. For instance, give the company a plan of rooms in an ordinary house with doors, windows and fireplaces marked in clearly, and then cut out furniture of all kinds from a catalogue and get the house planned and furnished to the best advantage.

Or state a definite weekly housekeeping allowance for a certain family, and get the patrols to budget for the week.

Hats and Heads is a most popular form of jig-saw game. Cut hats from heads out of a millinery book, and make a game of finding hats to suit all customers.

The use of the circular discs (like radio at a glance charts) was also a new idea to some present and can be adapted to all sorts of tests, etc. Take two circular cardboard lids and pin together with a drawing pin in the centre, then cut a slit on each piece of cardboard. Write a series of questions on any given badge or test and then put the answers on the other side to match the slit of the query. These cards can be left with the company all the week, and the children love playing with them and examining each other. One example shows a large chart with a ship in distress. A letter in Morse is signalled from the ship, and the lighthouse light shows the correct letter!

The various race games and charts out of THE GUIDE, prettily coloured and mounted, were shown and seemed a novelty to many present. They deserve to be more utilised in all Extension Companies than they are, as they are ideal for that purpose.

(EDITOR'S NOTE.—The Editor of THE GUIDE tells us that there are still a very few back copies of the paper containing the above charts and games available, but will those requiring them please write at once. She also tells us that she hopes to run another series of this type at an early date.)

EXTENSION CAMPS.

Will everyone please note that Extension Camp permission forms must be sent first to the County Extension Secretary and not direct to Headquarters. (See Extension Camp Leaflet.)

Medical certificates, if more convenient (especially for Post Companies), can be sent in a sealed envelope with the Guide when she goes for her medical examination, but care must be taken to enclose a stamped and addressed envelope for the doctor to return them to the Captain direct. Volunteers to help with Extension Camps are still wanted for camps in June and July. Names should be sent to The Commissioner for the Extension Branch, c/o Imperial Headquarters, 17-19, Buckingham Palace Road, S.W.1.

A Penny a Week for Camp!

That is what one of the Extension Guides has been saving each week since she came back from camp last year, but there are only 52 weeks in the year. Will you help, you, personally, or your company or your district to provide the balance of her camp fees?

Extension Guides and Rangers enjoy camp every bit as much as anyone else, but their opportunities for raising funds are so limited. When you are budgetting for your own camp could you add just a little more and send it to the Extension Branch Fund at Headquarters? Please try!

FLAGS FOR EXTENSION COMPANIES.

It has been suggested that a good use for the discarded Union Jacks that have been decorating our houses for the Jubilee would be to give them to Extension Companies and Packs. The small ones are invaluable for teaching the crosses and, being double-sided, are much better than charts. The medium-sized ones, if "planted" in a flower pot, would be welcomed by Hospital Guiders. And is there not many a Guider, of a hard-up company as well as of an Extension one, who would rejoice to receive a large Jack for their ceremonials?

JANET ALLAN,
Commissioner for Extensions.

HOEING

by

V. R. D.

CAPTAIN and Brown Owl are both hoers, and we all know that hoeing is vital to the successful growth of a crop. But it is Brown Owl's last job and Captain's first job, if we like to compare the life of a child in Guiding to the life of a plant. Some Brown Owls and Captains start at either end of a long bed, each working at her own part of the ground, and they never meet to pass the time of day, and so the middle of the bed gets neglected and the crop is uneven. The change from seedling to plant is often a difficult process, and hoeing does help.

Here is some of Brown Owl's hoeing:—

Brown Owl, Tawny and Packleader. Look through your registers together, and notice which Brownies are to be 10½-11 this year. Both Brown Owl and Tawny should watch the children and notice how they develop and which are likely to be ready for the company the soonest. Both should talk to these Brownies about Guides in general, about the company and its doings, and should give them books to read about Guides, without necessarily mentioning "going up" at all. Pack Leader should be encouraged to tell any news of the company to the Brownies, and to try and enthuse them with the idea of joining.

In the Pack. Sometimes your stories should be of Guides and what they do. Company news should creep into pow-wow now and then. The pack should be encouraged to write to the company now and again, letters of congratulation, greetings for the company's birthday, letters of thanks, or just news—all these help a lot. Captain and Lieutenant should be invited to the pack sometimes, and a formal invitation from the pack makes the occasion all the more important! Why not ask the P.L.s down sometimes? Brown Owl should be able to say something like this sometimes at pow-wow: "I went to the company meeting the other night, and I saw Mary and Beryl and Jill (ex-Brownies) who were all given their Second Class Badges. We played a lovely game called 'Desert Islands,' and we were all wrecked. It was most exciting!" All this is founding a tradition of pride in the company, and the feeling that it is an honour to go on to it. Brown Owl and Tawny must found this tradition and foster it, helping the pack to realise the family feeling and the unity of all branches of Guiding.

Brown Owl to the Brownies who are nearly ready to go on. Emphasise the "step-up" of Guiding and how much more grown-up it is than the pack. Show how they can help the pack by the way they behave, and how much they can lend a hand. Do not hide the truth, but let them know that it will be quite different, and that bits of it may be hard, but let them feel your own enthusiasm for the game and how thrilling it all is. Let them share your keenness and Tawny's for the company, and let them feel that you are Guides first and Brown Owl and Tawny second.

The Mother. Sometimes it is necessary to explain that the child is getting too old for the pack, and needs a change. Discuss with her the time to go on. Later introduce Captain to her and she will discuss uniform and other details. Let the Mother understand that it will be a big change, and one that the Brownie may not at first relish, and that she will need everybody's help and encouragement to make it successfully.

To Captain. "May I come to the Court of Honour some time fairly soon and tell you all about the Brownies? Can I fix a date now?" Later on, a few words about each individual Brownie's hobbies and likes and dislikes will help. But these hints should not be too numerous, as they are apt to give Captain a preconceived idea of the child, and it is much better for everybody that she should get to know the Brownie in her own way. Why not ask Captain to come occasionally and help test Union Jack or knots, or some other parts of the tests?

Captain's hoeing (part of it):—

The Court of Honour. "Brown Owl has asked to come and talk about Brownies. I feel it would have been more polite if we had asked her! Let's remember to do it next time." Discuss vacancies, so that you are ready to talk about the Brownies who will best fill them. Discuss with Brown Owl the probable time and numbers. Talk about the flying-up (or going-up) ceremony, and encourage the company to make up their own bit of it and to rehearse it, so that it all goes smoothly on the day. Discuss also the rest of the programme for that day. Would Brown Owl and Tawny like to stay for all or part of it? What about the mothers, would they like to come? Suggest that the P.L.s can often do a great deal to help thrill the Brownies who are just coming up. Suggest that Brown Owl should bring her Sixers to watch a meeting and have it all explained to them. Suggest that your Leaders ask the Sixers to a hike once a year. Ask Brown Owl to the enrolment of her Brownies as Guides. See that the Court of Honour, and, indeed, the whole company realises that the pack judges Guiding entirely from them, and what a big responsibility is theirs.

To the Company. A Brownie game now and again for fun. A Brownie story sometimes, also for fun. Pack news if there is any. Think of asking the pack to help you sometimes. They can make quite good things for camp: letter-boxes, shoe-cleaning and badge-cleaning outfits, etc., and they can put string on to your mops and wooden spoons for hanging. In fact, start to build a tradition by keeping the pack in the company's mind, and by making them feel proud of the pack and of the fact that most of them have been Brownies.

To Brown Owl. Invite her to company meetings every now and again. She can often help you with testing for such things as bed-making and compass, and probably many other things. Explain your standards carefully to her, and see that she understands what you expect. She can help your signallers with their semaphore, too. If she is new, take her to trainings with you and introduce her to other Guiders, and help her to try and get to a Training Week, which will make just all the difference to her outlook and work with the pack. She is often diffident and rather shy, and would so appreciate some help.

To Pack Leader. A word or two about her job as the link between pack and company. When Brown Owl asks for a Pack Leader, try and give her one who will really reflect your company to the pack. It should be a great honour to be chosen as Pack Leader, for in its way it is as responsible a job as that of a Leader.

To the Pack. An occasional visit from Captain with a story about the company marks a red-letter day for the pack. Photos of camp are always a thrill. A new game, an inspection by Captain, and a word or two to the Brownies who may be coming up soon—all these things make such a difference. Sometimes a pack frightens a captain, who thinks that she may be asked to be a bear or a giraffe, and is not sure if she feels equal to the strain! But what the pack wants most is to know Captain herself and hear about Guiding, which is all new and strange, and therefore infinitely alluring. The pack hates being talked down to, it wants to feel grown-up and big and very important, and that is partly why Captain's visit is always such an event, because she represents the next step up for the Brownies. Hoëing—let us each do our own bit, but let us meet in the middle and talk about things and ask each other our difficulties. It is the plants that we are working for, and they only which matter.

THE LICENCE TEST

By ONE WHO FAILED.

IT is a great thrill being asked to take the Camper's Licence Test, and a much greater thrill to receive it, but the fact that your Commissioner asks you to go in for it does not guarantee that you will get it!

I attribute my failure almost entirely to taking the test before I had been to a training camp. That in itself is such a joyous and adventurous experience, that a first visit ought not to be overshadowed by the thought of tests!

I was not a little nervous about going to live among some forty strangers for a week, and I imagined the Commandant and Camp Advisers would watch my every action with a critical and superior air, and stand by, making notes, while I did my practical work, expecting me to know how to do everything perfectly after being shown once—or not at all!

Exactly how wrong I was you who have been to these camps will know, and I hope those of you who have not been will go and find out.

My patrol and others made me feel quite at home, helped me settle in, and showed me round. The C.C.A. and the C.A.s were kindness itself, and I never once saw them making notes.

But I did! Reams of them! Most of the information was new to me and some of the practical work was done quite differently from what I was accustomed, so I tried to apply my newly acquired knowledge before I had had time to think it all out and try it. The results of which I leave to your imagination.

Thinking I had plenty of time, I left most of my practical work until the end of the week, and was haunted by the thought of "doing" my fireplace, tents, screening, hike, etc., all during the first part of the week, and there was no time left in which to do anything a second time.

Each day seemed half the usual length. Waking up was no easy matter, and it was a scramble to be ready for colours. Then, when half my brailing was still down, and my bed not out, "cookhouse" would sound. Before patrol jobs were finished there would be tent inspection. Life was one long rush of jobs: meals, sessions, hikes, Courts of Honour, canteen, tent pitching, making notes, copying the words of songs, and tidying one's tent. Rest hour? I hadn't time.

Then at the end, that tactful, encouraging and helpful private talk from the C.C.A. And her assurance that "next year" everything would be all right, and that if my paper was satisfactory it need not be done again.

It did not have to be done again. I spent weeks on it, revising my notes, reading any book I could find about camping, first aid, homesickness, food; and when I eventually set to work to answer the questions I enjoyed doing it because I knew what to say. And the next Whitsun I fully realised the value of the previous camp. I planned my tests evenly over the whole week, organised my patrol, asked about things I wanted to know instead of silently thinking we ought to be told. I had my rest hour, found time to stand and stare at birds in their nests, and at other people's gadgets, and to have a great deal of fun as well.

I think the most helpful advice any Guider can give to another, is to say, "Go to your County Training Camp, no matter what your rank."

If you have done a lot of camping, you will still find there is much to learn, and there will be many novices glad of your help. If you have never camped you will learn there the thrill and romance of outdoor life, and get the results of the experiences of experts. If you have not been, and never will be asked to take your Licence, it is only fair to the Guider who takes your children that you should know all that her job means, and knowing, there are innumerable ways in which you can help her.

To those who are taking the test, I think the previous experience of a training camp is invaluable. You gain that self-confidence which comes from knowing what you have to do and how to do it. You can assist Guiders who are being tested, to pitch their tents, and erect their screening. You hear discussions and talks, you get your bearings, as it were, and when your turn comes, you have no temptation to get "fussed." In all probability some of the staff will be the same and it is always easier to do things for someone who knows and understands your difficulties than for some stranger you imagine to be so efficient and exacting that the very sight of her makes you hot and bothered.

So do go—for a day or a week-end if you cannot get away for longer. You will gain something you cannot put into words—or a notebook! And you will smile to yourself if anyone asks to see your Licence, and says, as someone did to me, "Is that all you get?"

I said, "No, not by any means." But because I had nothing to show her but snaps, she still thinks I'm a little mad. Perhaps I am!

Carnarvonshire Guides—Delivering the Message to Mrs. Williams-Ellis.

BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

The Guides of Buckinghamshire, having received the King's gracious assent to the presentation of an address, assembled in the historic town of Olney, early in the morning of May 4th. There, the County Commissioner, in the presence of a large gathering of Guiders, Guides, Scouts and others, handed the address to a party of Guides on bicycles, to be carried faithfully to the King.

The address, which was inscribed on a vellum scroll, was worded thus:—

"The Guides of Buckinghamshire humbly tender to their Majesties this expression of their devoted loyalty and their deep sense of gratitude for all the blessings conferred on the Empire by the twenty-five years of His Majesty's beneficent reign."

Relays of Guides carried the message by a winding route from north to south over 150 miles of the county. At Buckingham, Aylesbury, and High Wycombe, the Mayor, supported by the townspeople and local Scouts and Guides, welcomed the bearers and sped them on their way.

In many other towns on the route they were greeted by the townspeople, and another batch of Guides took over the message.

On Saturday night the address was received at Chesham, where it was kept in safety until Monday, May 6th, when relays of Guides bore it once more upon its way through the county.

At 3.30 p.m., at Windsor Castle, the County Commissioner, District Commissioners with their standards, and the Eton and Slough Companies, paraded in the presence of General Sir Charles Kavanagh. The scroll arrived punctually at 3.30 p.m., and was received on behalf of the King, by Sir Charles, who congratulated the Guides on their achievement.

CARNARVONSHIRE.

GUIDES' JUBILEE MESSAGE.

It suddenly struck us in Carnarvonshire that it would be rather exciting to celebrate the King's Jubilee by running a trail round the county, from place to place, wherever there was a Guide Company. Everyone was thrilled so we decided to start on April 23rd, at 9 a.m., from the Guide Hut, Bangor. The County Commissioner came and read prayers and then explained why we were sending the message to His Majesty The King. After that we all sang the National Anthem and the messengers put on their white haversacks with the message inside and rode off to Port Dinorwic. The message was in a red velvet bag. (It had been illuminated on vellum by the Cadets of Bangor University.) Then it was put in a cardboard roll, painted silver, and lastly wrapped up in oiled silk and sealed to keep out the wet.

The message ran: "Carnarvonshire Girl Guides humbly desire to congratulate your Majesties on the Jubilee of your reign. Long live our King."

At each place where the message stopped it was read in Welsh and English, whether it was on the main road, in a town, or village hall.

It was met with ceremony at each stop on the arrival of the King's Messengers. The Guider in charge called out: "Who goes there?"

MESSANGER: "A messenger carrying the King's message."

GUIDER: "What message do you bring?"

MESSANGER: "A message of loyalty to His Majesty the King."

GUIDER: "Pass friend."

The haversacks were then opened and the message was read. "God Save the King" was sung and the new messengers set out, walking, running, bicycling, they went round the county, taking four days to do it, until they got back to Bangor at four o'clock on Friday, April 26th, with the message which was received by the County Commissioner. Prayers were said for the King's Majesty and a hymn was sung; afterwards we all had tea.

The most exciting time of all was when the County Commissioner and Divisional Commissioner for South Carnarvonshire went to London with the message by car, to present it to the Princess Royal, who had graciously consented to give it to the King. We had lunch at Guide Headquarters with Miss Montgomery, where Lady Blytheswood met us, and we all went in her car to present the message to the Princess. Her Royal Highness was most gracious and told us of her adventures on Jubilee night. Then Lady Blytheswood most kindly took us to find our own car and we set off for home. We found that the message had brought the thrills of the Jubilee amongst us in our distant part of the world and we feel now that we belong more than ever to the great family of which the King is the head.

SUSSEX MESSAGE.

"The Girl Guides of Sussex send their humble duty to Their Majesties The King and Queen and gratefully acknowledge their continuous interest in the youth of the country. In offering Their Majesties congratulations on their Silver Jubilee they would assure them of their increased enthusiasm in fulfilling their promise of loyalty."

A JUBILEE CAMP.

HOW WE SPENT JUBILEE DAY.

Dawn, birds chirping, brilliant sunshine. Hurray! What a marvellous day for Their Majesties. Camp is well awake, out we pop. Oh, what a morning! Cook is busy, breakfast ready. Colours, what a thrill to be chosen to hoist them on Jubilee morning. Then orderly work, and by 10.45 all campers settle comfortably round their portable wireless and listen to that wonderful procession and service. Later, round a blazing camp fire we sat and listened to our King, and will never forget that moment, it seemed as though the King was amidst our camp fire circle, and as we stood for that final National Anthem, how jolly proud we all were to be British. So ended our Jubilee Camp.

AMONG GUIDES

GLASGOW.

About eight thousand Guides, Rangers and Brownies attended the Jubilee celebrations held by the County of the City of Glasgow Guides in the policies of Sir John Stirling Maxwell, of Pollok.

In an interval in the fireworks display, Lord Provost Alexander B. Swan, as Lord Lieutenant, received gifts of money from the Guides for the Jubilee Trust Fund. To collect this money the Guides had arranged a sweetest week, and Sir Alexander said that he would take great pleasure in writing to tell the King of their self-sacrifice.

EDINBURGH.

On Saturday, May 11th, members of nearly all the juvenile organisations of Edinburgh took their places on the International Rugby Ground for the Grand Jubilee Rally.

At 3 p.m. the Duke and Duchess of York arrived, and drove round the field amid loud cheers. Arriving at the grandstand they alighted from the car and the National Anthem was played, the Scouts and Guides standing at the full salute, while the Colours were dipped.

The Duke made a short speech, after which the Duchess released the six carrier pigeons which were to carry loyal greetings to His Majesty The King from the juvenile organisations.

The Duke and Duchess took their places in the royal box and the Boys' Brigade began the performance with a display of gymnastics. The Scouts gave a fine show of bridge building and pyramid making, after which they performed an Indian war dance.

The Sea Scouts set up a flagstaff, the pipe band of the Rovers performed, and the District Colours were shown. Then the Cubs gave the Grand Howl and framed the second Scout Law.

After this the Rangers pitched tents in three minutes and the Guides paraded with Company, Divisional and County Colours.

DENBIGHSHIRE.

The Denbighshire Guides celebrated the King's Silver Jubilee on Saturday, May 4th, so as to leave the Guides free to join in local celebrations on May 6th.

In celebration of the Jubilee, the Guides of Wales decided to lay a silver trail, to consist of threepenny bits and silver paper, every Guide patrol and Brownie six in the Principality contributing one threepenny bit.

On Saturday, Guides from all over Denbighshire walked in, from distances of from three to five miles, and from every direction and converged on Denbigh Castle at three-thirty in the afternoon. In some cases the whole company walked, as escort to the purse-bearer.

The official ceremony was preceded by a short Brownie ceremony, when the Brownies presented their silver paper to the Mayor. The Mayor and County Commissioner took their stand in the middle of the castle, and the 1st Llangwyfan Sanatorium, 1st Denbigh and 1st Nantglyn brought their sacks to the Mayor. The Brownies then sang the Brownie song and gave the Mayor the Grand Howl.

At 3.30 the official ceremony started. The Mayor of Denbigh, and the County Commissioner, Miss Watd, took up their position in the centre of the castle entrance to receive the Guides' money. As each purse-bearer and escort approached the gate they were challenged by two sentries.

"Halt! Who goes there?"

"1st D—Company, with silver for the King," was the reply.

"Pass, 1st D—Company, with silver for the King."

They then marched up to the Mayor, and presented their purses, which were received with the words: "In the name of the King, I thank you."

When forty-seven companies had marched in in this way, the Rev. W. C. Dickin, Scoutmaster of the 2nd Denbigh, conducted a Guides' Own, and gave an inspiring address.

Tea followed, and then the four hundred Guides held a camp fire in the grounds of Plas Castell, which were kindly lent by Mrs. Lewis.

£17 11s. was received in threepenny bits. It is hoped to augment this sum and bring it up to £50, when the money will be sent to King George's Jubilee Trust Fund.

IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS.

We approached the Palace on that sunny morning, and having given up our tickets at the gate, entered with fast-beating hearts into the forecourt. There were ten of us—ten very privileged people from Guide Headquarters—and we seemed very lost in what seemed to us a vast sandal space, until a smiling policeman came and took us under his wing. We were given a splendid position, just to the right inside the centre gates, with a view of the inner courtyard, and in front of the famous balcony! We thought the time might seem long until 11.30—but did it? It simply flew! There was so much to see and so much to watch from different directions that each one of us felt rather like Alice, with her neck twisted round and round! The space outside the Palace gates was clear and so we had a view of the bands as they marched past—the Guards, the Royal Air Force, the Marines. Later there was the ride past of Life Guards, Cavalry, Hussars, Lancers, Artillery, with plumes and pennants flying, and uniforms looking so gay in the lovely sunshine, against the background of trees. But time was going on, and we became more and more excited; it was so difficult to stand in a straight line, and we would get the tops of our heads in the way of the press cameras! Then the escort of Life Guards rode into the forecourt, Their Majesties' escort riding through into the inner court, while the others formed a straight line on either side of the inner gateway. A breathless hush, then a shout; the first carriage drove out under the archway, the Duke and Duchess of York with the little Princesses so lovely and so excited; the escort wheeled into position and they were off, amid the deafening cheers of that vast crowd. More carriages follow, the Royal Family with their escorts, and then, Their Majesties! We felt our hearts must burst with joy and pride and could scarcely refrain from dashing forward to the carriage (we had no restraint of police and Guards!). The long-looked-for moment had arrived. Their Majesties, looking so wonderful, were starting out on their drive through the serried ranks of the thousands of their loyal people who were waiting to greet them. And what a greeting! During the interval of waiting for the return of the procession from St. Paul's, we walked up and down the forecourt, seeking every now and then a shady spot, as did others there, while the massed bands of the Guards, Air Force and Marines played outside the centre gate. Once again intense excitement—the return of the procession—this time led by Their Majesties. Then the marvellous view we had of them all on the balcony in front of us; how hushed we were with shouting and cheering!

Altogether an unforgettable day and a sense of gratitude in our hearts for the marvellous and uninterrupted view we had enjoyed of the whole proceedings.

DORSET RANGERS SPEND JUBILEE DAY IN LONDON.

Jubilee Day was but a few hours old when the coach picked up the first of our party.

For weeks we had been planning this trip to London and now the great day had arrived. There were twelve of us altogether, including Captain. As the last Ranger climbed into the charabanc, the driver turned the bonnet towards London.

In spite of the early hour the streets were thronged with people. The route at Hyde Park Corner was lined with all-night watchers.

"Can! Are they going to build King George a new castle, Mum?"

THE GUIDER

At Constitution Hill we found a thin spot in the crowd. Here we took our stand for a three-hour wait. The time simply flew by. There was so much to see. At last the route was cleared of traffic and pedestrians. The Guards clicked to attention; bursts of cheering rippled along the route, and the first carriage swept by. In it sat the Prime Minister and Miss MacDonald. Excited conversation during the intervals between each procession. Suddenly a hush seemed to steal over the crowd; a lull before the storm of cheering that burst out as a jingle of spurs announced the approach of the final procession.

The King and Queen
How the people cheered!

The procession over, everyone surged into the road. We pushed and were pushed into Hyde Park. Dinner—a welcome rest under the trees, and we were ready to spend the remainder of the day sight-seeing.

Taking the tube to Piccadilly, we went to Bond Street to see the decorations. Going through Green Park, we came to Buckingham Palace. Here we were lucky enough to see the Royal Family again, as they came on to the balcony in response to the cheering of the huge crowd that had gathered in front of the Palace.

At St. Paul's Cathedral we joined the scores of people, who were waiting to go in. But we were doomed to disappointment. The Cathedral was closed at five o'clock. So boarding a bus we went down Fleet Street, the Strand, Trafalgar Square, Whitehall, and so came to Guide Headquarters.

"If only the doors would open and we could go in," we sighed wistfully, with noses glued to the enchanting windows.

It was a very weary band of jubilators that eventually stole through the deserted streets of Bournemouth as the clocks were striking two.

But who minded being tired?

It had been a wonderful day!

CAMBRIDGE SEA RANGERS.

THE GOOD SHIP "ARETHUSA."

S.R.S. Arethusa, Cambridge, staged a Sea Ranger Tattoo, "The Nelson Touch," in honour of the King's Jubilee.

The programme was a mixture of practical demonstration and fun, and represented three months' preparation. There were sea shanties and sick bay display, national dances and a physical training display. There was also a musical ride, by the 17th Prancers (Death or Glory Girls). This ride was performed with apologies and acknowledgments to the Lancers at the Royal Tournament, Olympia. The riders, mounted on hobby horses, carried the flag of the Saucy Arethusa, the skull and crossbones, which is named the Death and Glory after a small craft of that name, owned by the Chief Scout, when, as a boy, he used to sail under the pirate flag.

After several other displays came the final pageant. Grace Darling in her boat, and the lighthouse, formed the background for a procession depicting the progress of woman in the last 25 years. This was followed by a roll of drums, and the White Ensign was lowered.

The performance was repeated on Saturday, the 11th, when the Mayor and Mayoress, and J. S. Wilson, Camp Chief of Gilwell, were present, and Miss Marshall, Commandant of the Cambridge Red Cross Society, judged the bed-making. The proceeds of the display were for camp funds.

THE HYDE PARK BEACON.

On Jubilee night a hundred and fifty thousand people gathered in Hyde Park to see the Scout Beacon, which the King himself was to light by pressing a button in Buckingham Palace.

The Scouts had invited some of us into their enclosure and we were grateful as we followed them through the crowds into the space that was fenced off for their own use. It had been a thrilling but tiring day for most of us, so it was delightful to sit in the cool air of the Park, reviewing the events of one of the most significant days in British history.

There were many sights to watch while waiting for the procession in the morning, but the one which appealed to me most was the bearing of the Scouts who were selling the Jubilee Trust programmes. It made one proud to see them struggling through the mass of people—the smaller boys often being completely hidden and unnoticed—yet always polite and helpful.

Now they were gathered round their own beacon, which was the signal for the lighting of a chain of fire round Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Many of them had just listened to the messages broadcast from all over the Empire, and at the end they had heard the King's voice thanking his people for the love they had given him during his reign, and which they had demonstrated that day. We could still hear his inspiring message to the children, and to our hearts we were renewing our promise of loyalty to him and to the Empire whose future, the King had told us, lay in the hands of the young.

Suddenly a roll of drums brought us to our feet. For the last time that day we sang "God Save the King," and as the last note faded into silence, the beacon burst into flames. A joyful message was speeding on its way, first to the counties near London, then to the mountains of Wales and Scotland, across the strip of water which divides us from Ireland—a salute to the King from the youth of his country.

There was a hush round the beacon. Here and there a group had started to sing, but in general we were thoughtful. Perhaps a feeling of responsibility held us silent, as we watched the flames leaping up against the dark sky.

At one moment they seemed to form a gigantic Scout Badge, at the next a shower of sparks like rockets shot into the darkness.

The Chief Scout seemed to be very near to us in those moments of thoughtfulness. In fact, he was far away, lighting, I believe, the Scout beacon at Winnipeg, but we felt that he was among us in Hyde Park leading us, as ever, as we pledged ourselves anew to the King's service.

WARNING!

DO NOT MISS RIGHT TURN JUST AHEAD.
COMING SOON!

Yes, all kinds of good things are coming soon, but you will miss them if you do not take THE GUIDE regularly. A series of most exciting competitions on Guide Knowledge and General Knowledge of every description is one of the good things in store. This is just the type of competition that Guiders are always crying out for for use in their companies and rarely get time to think out for themselves. A series of six or eight question papers will be published and at the very end the correct solution will be given. A prize of £1 1s. to be spent at Headquarters will be given to the Guide or Ranger company who sends in the most correct set of answers to the questions given in the Competition series. Prizes will also be awarded for the best patrol and best individual efforts. Get your company interested in this competition, it is going to be great fun even if they cannot win a prize.

Splendid games are also to be published in THE GUIDE, and these will be designed so that they can be cut out of the paper, coloured and set up on cards for use in the clubroom or out-of-doors. These games will prove invaluable to every Guider.

There is still one more new good thing in store, in addition to all those already contained in THE GUIDE every week. That new thing has been in great demand this year and will be wanted even more in 1936, the Silver Jubilee year of the Guide Movement. Perhaps you have guessed by this time what the "new thing" is! A series of beautiful full-page drawings showing the uniforms worn by Guides and Brownies in other lands. These drawings will be correct in every detail and we feel certain that they are going to be extremely popular. If you do not already take THE GUIDE send 2d. to Captain, THE GUIDE, 17, Buckingham Palace Road, London, S.W.1, and you will receive four free copies by way of an introduction. In any case place a regular order for the paper now, for it will be difficult to get while these special series are running. You can order THE GUIDE regularly from your Newsagents at 2d. per week, or you can send to the Broadway Press, Ltd., Lewisham, London, S.E.13, enclosing a postal order for 10s. 5d., and you will receive the paper every Thursday morning without fail and post free.

CHAPTER VI.

THE sound of the Brown Owl's voice gradually died away, till all was dead silence, and at that moment a Camp Adviser, wearing a green cord, came bearing down upon them.

"You will observe the rules of camp, of course?" the C.A. remarked.

"I always do," said the Gryphon, and they began hurling up tents at such a rate that Alice hid behind a tree to be out of the way of the tent poles.

"I wonder, now, what the rules of camp are," she said to herself, as she watched the proceedings from her hiding place, "one rule seems to be that you must never be allowed a moment to breathe!"

Another rule of camp, that Alice had not noticed, was Rest Hour, and fatigues ended in this way, everybody going into the shade for a nap. When they got up again they shook hands with the C.A., who rushed off with the Gryphon.

"Now one can breathe more easily," said a Camper, putting back her hair with both hands and turning her gentle face and large, mild eyes to Alice.

She had a queer little deal box fastened across her shoulders upside down, and with the lid hanging open.

Alice looked at it with great curiosity.

"I see you are admiring my little box," the Camper said in a friendly tone. "It's my own invention—to keep bacon rind and orange peel in. You see I carry it upside down, so that the rain can't get in."

"But the fire-lighters can get out," Alice gently remarked. "Do you know the lid is open?"

"I didn't know it," the Camper said, a shade of vexation passing over her face. "Then all the things must have fallen out! And the box is no use without them." She unfastened it as she spoke, and was just going to throw it away into the refuse pit when a sudden thought seemed to strike her, and she hung it carefully on a tree.

"Can you guess why I did that?" she said.

Alice shook her head.

"In hopes that the Guides may put their letters into it—then we should have a camp-postbox."

"You see," she went on after a pause, "it's as well to Be Prepared for everything. That's the reason I have collected all these poles and sticks from the wood."

"But what are they all for?" Alice asked in a tone of great curiosity.

"Oh, to make wardrobes and tooth-brushes and plate racks and arm-splints and towel horses and paper baskets and odds and ends of that sort," said the Camper, in an off hand sort of way. "I'm a great hand at inventing things."

"Now the cleverest thing that I ever did," she went on after a pause, "was inventing a pudding during the meat course."

"In time to have it cooked for the next course?" said Alice. "Well, that was quick work, certainly."

"Well, not the next course," the Camper said in a slow, thoughtful tone; "No, certainly not the next course."

"Then it would have to be the next day, I suppose?"

"Well, not the next day," the Camper repeated as before, "not the next day. In fact," she went on, holding her head down, and her voice getting lower and lower, "I don't believe that pudding ever was cooked! In fact, I don't believe that pudding ever will be cooked! And yet it was a very clever pudding to invent."

"What did you mean it to be made of?" Alice asked, hoping to cheer her up, for she seemed quite low-spirited about it.

"It began with Camp Permission Forms," the Camper replied with a groan.

"They wouldn't be very nice, I'm afraid —"

"Not very nice alone," she interrupted quite eagerly, "but you've no idea what a difference it makes mixing it with other things—such as Irish Stew and Picric Acid. And here I must leave you."

Alice could only look puzzled; she was thinking of the pudding.

"You are sad," said the Camper, "let me sing you a camp fire song to cheer you up. The song is 'A-sitting on a Gate,' and the words are my own invention."

"My simple story I'll confide,
There's little to relate—
I saw a happy, happy Guide
A-sitting on a gate.
'Come tell me where you camp,' I said,
'And how it is you live?'
Her answer trickled through my head
Like water through a sieve.

She said 'I roam the country-side
Arrayed in strange attire,
And cook my dinner—have you tried?
Upon an open fire.
And here's the knife to cut the sod
(And cut my fingers too!)
But hiking would seem very odd
To 'portant folk—like you!'

She said 'I work for camping funds
And coin of silvery shine,
(Our cook will bake me
currant buns
A halfpenny for nine.)
And then I like to pitch
my camp
Without the C.C.A.
And sleep out nightly in
the damp
While Captain is away.'

But I was thinking out a plan
To wear a new cockade, (Dark blue is such an
'also ran'
I'll try the District shade.)
So having no reply to give
To what the young girl
said
I cried 'Come tell me
how you live!'
And thumped her on the head.

Her accents mild took up the tale,
She said 'I never beg;
An entertainment or a Sale
Provides the Golden Egg.
We do it all ourselves, you know,
There's heaps and heaps to learn;
Yet twopence halfpenny or so
Is all we ever earn.'

But I was thinking out a way
To gain the All Round Cord;
And always make my father pay
For things I can't afford.
I shook her well from side to side
Until her face was blue,
'Come tell me how you hike,' I cried,
'And what it is you do.'

I heard her then, for I had just Completed my design
To keep my uniform
from dust
And make my badges
shine.
I thanked her much for telling me
Of all that she had done,
But more for helping me
to see
That Guiding should be fun.

And now if e'er by chance I dip
My fingers into fame;
And let that great tradition slip
That Guiding is a game,
And if I work for empty
show

As for affairs of State,
I weep, for it reminds me
so

Of that young Guide I used to know,

Who grew where young things ought to grow,
In happy fields where brooklets flow,
Nor cared a hoot for heat or snow
But cut her thumb and burnt her toe,
To bake some rather doubtful dough,
Who knew a blackbird from a crow,
And swede from mangel wurzel row,
Whose tangled hair was all a-blow,
And eyes with happiness a-glow,
While stockinged legs swung to and fro,
That Summer evening long ago
A-sitting on a gate."

"Thank you for the song," said Alice, "I liked it very much."

"I hope so," said the Camper, as they shook hands.

PROBLEM No. 18

THE BROWNIE WHO STAYS AWAY

Two readers have written asking advice about Brownies who are attending irregularly. We print both their letters below.

"Amongst our first Brownies over two years ago, we had a very keen and lively one. She entered into everything and worked splendidly. In July of last year she won her Golden Hand with 92 per cent. Both Brown Owl and myself were very pleased and she was made a Sixer.

The summer holidays came along, also Brown Owl's resignation. At the end of August we started our meetings again and this small Brownie didn't turn up. The last two weeks before the holidays she had also missed, but as many Brownies had started their summer holidays, we didn't trouble. During the whole of September she was away, in spite of my call at the house and my enquiries to her sister.

On October 1st we celebrated our second birthday and she came along, also the following two weeks. She seemed very keen and anxious to take First Aider with the three other Golden Hand Brownies.

Since then she has not been near us, although we had a Brownie concert and a District concert. Enquiries have been made and we find she has made a little friend whom she will not leave, even neglecting half her meals in order to go out and play. Her parents are keen for her to come and have done their best and we have suggested she should bring the friend along.

I am very much afraid that others may go, though the average attendance out of twenty-four is eighteen to twenty-two every week. Parents are well visited and the meetings are filled with surprises for all. Can any experienced Owl help a new Brown Owl with this difficulty of keeping the children?"

"I have a Brownie who joined when she was seven. She had an older sister in Brownies, too, called Mary, the younger one was Elsie. Elsie was always a keen Brownie, she had her promise, knots and everything else passed before she was eight. . . . Then Mary went into Guides, leaving Elsie still in Brownies. Soon afterwards Elsie stopped coming. When I went to enquire I found there had been trouble with their parents, who have now separated, the children living with their mother who goes out to work.

"Mary has left Guides as she has to help her mother, and Elsie, I think, wanted to help, too. Her mother said she could come if she wanted to, and I said I would leave her to think it over and to come to Brownies as soon as she had made up her mind.

"She never came for about six months. Now she has come back; she is only nine. I want to make new Sixers as the older ones have gone up to Guides. Should I make Elsie a Sixer?

Giving her a little responsibility may bring her back for good. But at the same time, other Brownies don't think it fair, as they have been all the time. Elsie would make a good Sixer, I am sure.

"What am I to do?"

COMMENTS.

These two letters state the same problem in a different form. The Golden Hand Brownie is a Sixer and still does not come! Many Owls must have suggestions to make which would help these two readers, so please send them along, not later than June 7th.

PROBLEM No. 17

WHAT TO DO WITH MARY

It is a strange coincidence that this problem should have appeared in the same number as Dr. Bryant's article on "The Boy who Steals," and several of our correspondents point out how helpful this article should be to Mary's captain. Several, too, say "it sounds like a real problem," and we should like the writers who so splendidly replied to our appeal for help, to know that it was—or rather is—a real problem. We can only print a very small selection from the many interesting and helpful letters we have received, but they are all being sent to Mary's captain so the writers who gave so much time and thought to her difficulties will know they have really helped her.

All writers are agreed that 6d. a week is far too little for Mary to spend on herself out of her own earnings, and the root of the problem probably lies here.

"Any treatment of this case must be constructive and compensating, not condoning or condemning. The root of the trouble is that miserable sixpence a week pocket money after all poor Mary's great efforts to become a good worker and model Guide. Other girls down her slum flaunt finery with no struggle against temptation and environment. The clothes supplied by Mrs. B may be charming, but not Mary's inward choice. Captain,

THE GUIDER

Mrs. B and Commissioner would do well to concoct a letter to the local Juvenile Court Magistrate asking for a private interview: "We have had trouble with one of our girls and would be so grateful for advice." Most of them have special training and a wide understanding of these problems and can possibly make an order preventing the parents interfering with Mary and limiting the amount of money to be sent home. Then if Mrs. B will keep Mary on, and she is appointed acting lieutenant and gets into Rangers, the child's perfectly understandable grudge against an unjust universe will be removed and her self-respect restored. More than half the cases of juvenile theft before the courts have a history of disturbed matrimonial relationships behind them; the child is defrauded and instinctively 'gets it's own back'."

"Mary's case is definitely a psychological one, and it would be a dreadful act to have her life ruined for ever by hasty action on the part of her employer. Consider the girl's history, a drunken father, an unloving step-mother, unsavoury home conditions and every penny of her earnings wrested from her."

"Her stealing is obviously compensatory. She longs for pretty things, for love and beauty in her life, and she has small means of obtaining them. The Guide Movement, though filling one need of her nature admirably, cannot give her the mother's love, or the dainty clothes which are a fundamental urge of her personality, and we have here the most difficult of all cases to deal with, as no one can supply her mother's place to her."

"She requires help from a trained psychologist and the Child Guidance Council can advise as to where this can be conveniently obtained. Mrs. B would be following up her noble work for Mary if she got in touch with a doctor from the Council who will be able to show her convincingly why the girl is behaving in this way . . ."

"Would it be possible for Captain to help Mary in some way to obtain one or two pretty objects which she could feel are her very own?"

"Mary at 17 is on the threshold of womanhood and her natural, though partly unconscious desire is to be beautiful and she craves for nice things she sees her mistress wearing . . . The natural cure would be to see she has opportunity to choose materials she likes and make them herself into pretty things . . . I would also advise that she goes farther away—in fact, into a new situation definitely removed from her family, to another good mistress and in touch with a good Ranger company. I stress Rangers because here again I think with Guides Mary is being cramped. Rangers have different meetings, they probably know and discuss their own minor problems, and Mary might have opportunities for meeting and making boy friends. She would certainly hear of her friends' boys and this side of her nature would get its proper encouragement."

"Would it not be possible for Captain to arrange a friendly chat with Mary and in the course of conversation draw from her a confession of her second lapse. Captain would then have an opportunity of suggesting that she understands her temptation in so far as it sprang from the natural desire of every girl to have lovely things. She might make her understand the chaos which would result if all took what we wanted. No one of us has everything which she desires and how could society exist if we all appropriated each other's possessions? It is only because most of us realise we must respect other people's property that society is able to hold together. Could not Captain persuade Mary that if she is tempted again, and very likely she will be, she should come and talk over the matter with Captain, and see if they cannot find a solution to the problem."

"It may be that she has a feeling of inferiority due to the fact that she is in service. Children are often very thoughtless in their remarks and 'a servant' is often looked down on. Have any of her fellow Guides put ideas such as these into Mary's head? . . . Could something be done to make Mary feel that her work is honest and useful and something to be proud of, not ashamed, e.g., she might give instruction for the Domestic Badge, or be put in charge of arrangements for cleaning out the hall or running teas at socials."

"The difficulty of Mary's case is her weakness of will. She cannot like to be a thief. She must like decent living and high ideals, or else she would not be a keen Guide and wish to be a Guider. But her inherited moral kinks and the bad influences of home break out in spite of the better things she has now learnt to like. Her will is not strong. 'Time cannot change men. Death cannot change men. But Christ can.' An utter and complete surrender to Him can make even the weak-willed strong."

TURNING PHOTOGRAPHY INTO A HOBBY

(2) MAKING YOUR OWN PRINTS

By JOHN J. CURTIS.

IN these busy days it is sometimes difficult to find time for everything one has to do, but there are many duties which I would sooner let slide than miss an evening with my holiday negatives, making prints and living the jolly times over again. I am very anxious to pass on to you the pleasure that can be got out of an evening at printing, so please try to follow what I have to tell you this month and, if you can, will you do some printing within the next week or so?

First we must consider what apparatus is required; well, you have already got most of it: two dishes, a measure, and a lamp with orange glass, also a tin of acid-fixing, these you used when developing the film; you must buy a printing frame and see that it has a piece of glass in it, you can get quite a nice one for 1s. 3d.; a 3d. packet of Johnson's M-Q developer, and a packet of gaslight paper—I like Slogas—12 pieces,  $3\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{1}{2}$ , for 6d., or 1 gross for 4s. 5d.

Before proceeding further, examine your negatives and sort them into three groups, one for very dense (difficult to see through without holding them to a light), another for the medium or average good negatives, and the third for the very thin ones; this sorting will save you much time.

Take the packet of developer and dissolve the chemical contents in 4 ounces of water and pour this into one of the dishes; then dissolve 1 ounce of the acid-fixing in 15 ounces of water and pour about 6 ounces of this into the other dish—store the remainder in a bottle, it will keep indefinitely. Place a bowl of clean water between the two dishes and light your lamp and have the orange glass in position.

I always believe in making a test exposure, it saves both time and paper, so I intend showing you how to make a test. Here is an approximate guide for correct exposure: using a normal negative and working at 12 inches from the light (never vary this distance please) you will give 6 seconds with a 40 watt electric lamp, 6 seconds for incandescent gas and 30 seconds if a duplex paraffin lamp; for the thin negatives less time, and for the dense ones more time, will be required.

Switch off all white light, open the packet of paper and take one piece, be sure to replace the remainder in the envelope, place the negative that you are going to print in the frame, see that the emulsion side is uppermost, cut your piece of paper into two long pieces and put one of these over the negative, coated side downwards to the film. Having measured 12 inches from your electric bulb or gaslight, get a piece of card big enough to cover the frame, place the frame in position, and now cover two-thirds of it with the card, then switch on the light and count 4 seconds and switch off; uncover another third of the frame, switch on the light and count another 4 seconds and switch off; then remove the card so that the whole of the frame is exposed, switch on and count 4 seconds again and switch off. You have by this means made three exposures on the one piece of paper; remove it from the frame and place it carefully under the solution of developer, rock the dish, and in about 10 seconds you will see the image appearing—it will be finished in about 1½ minutes. Take it out of this dish and give it a quick rinse in the water and pass it immediately to the fixing solution, see that it is completely immersed, after 3 minutes you can switch on the white light and examine it.

You will notice that there appear to be three bands of varying blackness, the centre one is probably the best, but it may not be quite right; the other bands are too light or too dark, so that you have slightly to alter the middle exposure, and for the actual print from that negative you will give 6 seconds. All you now have to do is to place a full size piece of paper in the frame over the negative—take care that the white light is switched off when you do this—expose for 6 seconds, develop for 1½ minutes and rinse it in the water (do this very quickly), and then put it into the fixing, leave it in this for at least 10 minutes, wash it for half-an-hour, and pin it to a shelf or lay it on a piece of muslin to dry. You have succeeded in making your first print. What do you think of the process? Isn't it fascinating? Try some more of your negatives—it becomes easier still as you go on.

THE GUIDER

PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPETITION.

The entries for this competition are still rather disappointing in quality. Quite a large number of photographs have been sent in, but very few are good enough for publication in THE GUIDER. We would like to draw the attention of our readers to the article published in the April GUIDER, which explains in detail the type of photograph required. For a definite illustration of our needs, we suggest that Guiders should turn to the cover of the present issue. This photograph was entered for the competition by Miss Buchanan of Co. Tyrone, Northern Ireland, to whom the prize of £1 will be sent. It is one of the most beautiful photographs which has ever been published in THE GUIDER, and we would like intending entrants to study it and realise that this is the standard at which we aim.

Many of the photographs sent in up to date, though quite artistic, are not clear enough for reproduction. Others, though clear, are not artistic in subject. Without wishing to discourage our readers, we do want to point out that, before a photograph is published in THE GUIDER, it must reach a certain standard, both from the artist's and the photographer's viewpoint. Our aim is to improve and encourage the photographic talent in the Movement, and we ask Guiders not to be discouraged because we are not easy to please. We are trying to help our readers by stating clearly what we want and what we do not want.

The photographs sent in during May and accepted for publication were entered by:—

Miss Paterson, Edinburgh.

(Two photographs, both of which we hope may be clear enough for publication on the cover, but which will otherwise be used as inside illustrations.)

Miss Bond, Haslemere.

(One photograph, delightful in subject, but, we fear, not quite clear enough to stand the necessary enlargement for the cover. This photograph will be used as an inside illustration.)

Miss S. C. Macleod, Bourne, Lincolnshire.

(One photograph for inside publication. As this has no actual Guide interest publication may be delayed until a suitable article is published. The photograph is such a beautiful study that it has been accepted despite the lack of Guide interest.)

Miss E. M. Cooper, Peckham.

(Three photographs, two of which have been accepted for inside publication.)

Miss E. V. Parker, Thornton Heath.

(One photograph. Very clear and attractive, spoilt by background. Accepted for inside publication.)

We very much regret that we are unable to accept the most attractive picture sent by Miss Wells Bladen, Staffs. This is a delightful subject, but unfortunately it is out of focus, and therefore unfit for reproduction.

Rejected photographs will be returned as early as possible in cases where stamped envelopes were sent. Payment of prizes will be made on publication of photographs.

We have to apologise to Miss Chettle, of Cheshire. We stated that the photograph entered by her had been published already in THE GUIDER. This was an error, as the photograph had been confused with another very similar one.

This photograph has been accepted for publication on the cover.

"THE GUIDER" HEALTH COMPETITION.

The entries for THE GUIDER Health Competition have now been judged and the prizes awarded. The first prize winner, to whom a voucher for £1 (to be spent at Headquarters), will be sent, is Miss Elizabeth Hartley, Sutton.

The second prize winner, who receives a voucher for 10s., is Miss B. Featherstonhaugh.

Highly commended: Miss D. Hartley, Berks; Miss R. M. Compton, Oxford.

The unsuccessful entries will be returned to their owners, in cases where a stamped and addressed envelope was sent, as soon as possible.

ADULT COURSE IN FIRST AID.

FIRST LECTURE.
Outline and Principles of First Aid.
A brief description of the Structure and Functions of the Body.
Fractures—Causes, varieties, signs and symptoms.
Treatment of Fractures—General Rules.
The Triangular Bandage—Its application to the Head, Chest, Back, Shoulder, Elbow, Hand, Hip, Knee and Foot. Arm slings (large, small and St. John).

SECOND LECTURE.
Individual fractures—details of treatment:—The Skull, Lower Jaw, Spine, Ribs, Breast-bone, Collar-bone, Shoulder-blade, Arm, Forearm, Hand, Pelvis, Thigh, Knee-cap, Leg and Foot.
Dislocations, Sprains, Strains—Signs, symptoms and treatment.
Practice—Treatment of fractures.

THIRD LECTURE.
General description of the Heart and Blood Vessels.
The Circulation of the Blood.
Wounds and Haemorrhage.
Wounds accompanied by Arterial Haemorrhage.
The situation of the main arteries—Pressure points.
Wounds accompanied by Capillary or Venous Haemorrhage—Varicose Veins.
Haemorrhage from special regions—Bruises.
Practice—Compression of arteries.

FOURTH LECTURE.
Injuries to internal organs—Haemorrhage.
Miscellaneous Injuries—Burns, Poisoned Wounds, Frost-bite, Foreign Bodies.
Practice—Treatment of Fractures and Haemorrhage (as in Lectures II and III).

FIFTH LECTURE.
Respiration—Natural and artificial.
Asphyxia.
The Nervous System.
Insensibility.
Practice—Artificial Respiration.

SIXTH LECTURE.
Poisons.
Transport of the Injured.
Stretcher exercises (for males only).
Preparation for the reception of Accident Cases.

HOME NURSING. ADULT COURSE.

FIRST LECTURE.
Chapter I. Definition of Home Nursing; Qualifications of the Nurse.
" II. Structure and Functions of the Body.
" III. The Roller Bandage. Practical Work—Roller Bandaging.

JUNIOR COURSE IN FIRST AID.

(Elementary First Aid Manual, No. 1a.)

(Minimum age, 14 years.)

PART A.

LECTURE 1.—General Principles of First Aid Treatment. (Chap. I.)
Treatment of shock and fainting.
Practical.—Making patient comfortable with emergency equipment (coats, etc.). Triangular bandage—how to fold—reef knot.

LECTURE 2.—The Human Skeleton. (Chap. III.)
Practical.—Slings—large arm, small arm and St. John's.

LECTURE 3.—Skeleton—general structure, omitting detailed naming of bones of cranium, vertebral column and pelvis. (Chap. IV, pp. 27–37.)
Practical.—Triangular bandage for scalp, hand, foot, elbow, shoulder, heel.

LECTURE 4.—Joints and Muscles. (Chap. IV, pp. 37–41.)
Strains and Dislocations. (Chap. V, pp. 47–52.)
Practical.—Treatment for sprained ankle and wrist.

LECTURE 5.—Circulatory System. (Chap. VI.)
Practical.—Location of Pressure Points.

LECTURE 6.—External Haemorrhage. (Chap. VII.)
Practical.—Arrest of Haemorrhage by pad and bandage, flexion or digital pressure (omit Tourniquet).

LECTURE 7.—General Treatment of Wounds. (Chap. VIII, pp. 109–112.)
Practical.—Treatment of cuts, grazes, bruises, stings of insects. Roller bandage for fingers.

LECTURE 8.—Burns and Scalds. (Chap. IX.)
Practical.—Applications of dressings with triangular bandage—and with roller bandage for arm and leg.

LECTURE 9.—Revision and tests.

PART B.

LECTURE 1.—Respiratory System. (Chap. X, pp. 124–128.)
Practical.—Revision of treatment for shock and fainting. Writing messages to Doctor.

LECTURE 2.—Asphyxia by Smothering, Drowning and Choking. (Chap. XI, appropriate sections.)
Practical.—Artificial respiration (Schafer).

LECTURE 3.—Skeleton—revision of bones of thorax, arms and vertebral column—details of vertebrae. (pp. 31–33.)
Practical.—Triangular bandaging for abdomen, chest, back and hip.

LECTURE 4.—Fractures—different kinds and their symptoms—treatment of simple fractures only. (pp. 53–59.)
(N.B.—It is important that students be warned against any attempt to deal with compound, complicated or comminuted fractures, other than treatment for shock and an immediate message for skilled help.)

Practical.—Treatment of simple fractures of humerus, radius and ulna, and hand. (pp. 69–73.)

LECTURE 5.—Skeleton—details of pelvis and revision of legs and feet. (pp. 34–37.)
Practical.—Treatment of simple fracture of patella, tibia, fibula and foot. (pp. 76–79.)

SUGGESTIONS FOR WASH-HOUSE AND LATRINE SHELTERS

LECTURE 9.—Revision and tests on Surgical Nursing.

ADULT COURSE IN FIRST AID.

LECTURE 1.—Introductory. Regions of the body, head and neck, chest, abdomen and limbs. General principles of First Aid treatment. Skeleton; bones, their composition and structure; their names and general description.

Practical Exercise.—The triangular bandage: materials, size, how to fold, how a splint cannot be used; (4) To pad a splint; (5) To hold a splint in place; (6) To cover a wound; (7) To arrest haemorrhage.

Slings: (1) Large arm-sling; (2) Small arm-sling; (3) Knots.

LECTURE 11.—Joints: their formation and varieties; sprains; dislocations, their signs, symptoms and treatment. Muscular system: tendons; injuries of muscles and tendons. Fractures: causes of; kinds of (simple, compound, comminuted, etc.); signs and symptoms of; general treatment; slings; splints and their application.

Practical Exercise.—The triangular bandage: to keep a dressing on (1) Hand; (2) Elbow; (3) Shoulder; (4) Chest; (5) Back; (6) Hip.

LECTURE 111.—Special fractures, as spine, pelvis, femur, patella and their treatment.
Practical Exercise.—The triangular bandage: to keep a dressing on (1) Knee; (2) Foot; (3) Head; (4) Eye. Other uses of triangular bandage.

LECTURE 111.—Special fractures and their treatment. Fractures of the leg, foot, scapula and upper limb. Fracture of the ribs and lower jaw.

Practical Exercise.—Splinting of fractures: Upper limb; (1) Humerus; (2) Elbow; (3) Olecranon; (4) Forearm; (5) Wrist; (6) Metacarpal bones.

LECTURE 111.—The blood; the heart; the blood vessels. The circulation of the blood, the pulse. The course of the arteries. Haemorrhage; signs and symptoms; general treatment; varieties of haemorrhage. Means of arresting haemorrhage; tourniquets.

Practical Exercise.—Splinting of fractures; lower limb: (1) Femur; (2) Femur, upper third; (3) Patella; (4) Leg bones; (5) Ankle; (6) Metatarsal bones.

LECTURE 111.—Pressure points and methods of arresting haemorrhage in particular parts of the body. Varicose veins. Wounds, varieties of; treatment of; dressings. Burns and scalds; treatment of.

Practical Exercise.—Splinting of fractures:—(1) Leg bones; (2) Ankle; (3) Metatarsal bones. Revision of use of triangular bandages and splinting of fractures.

LECTURE 111.—The nervous system; anatomy and physiology of the brain and nerves. Injuries of the brain; unconsciousness, causes of; fits and their symptoms and treatment. Shock. The eye and ear.

Practical Exercise.—Haemorrhage: methods of arrest. (1) Digital compression; (2) Pad and bandage; (3) Pad and flexion; (4) Tourniquet; (5) Arteries and pressure points.

LECTURE 111.—The respiratory system; suffocation; drowning; artificial respiration; injuries to the lungs. The abdomen and digestive system; anatomy; injuries of the abdomen; choking; vomiting. Rupture. Sudden childbirth. The lymphatic system.

Practical Exercise.—Haemorrhage: methods of arrest in cases of bleeding from hand and foot. Artificial respiration.

LECTURE 111.—Poisons: their classification, symptoms and treatment.

A BEAUTIFUL NATURE SCENE

The Summer Number of CHILD EDUCATION, now on sale, contains a large Wall Picture in FULL COLOUR (measuring approximately 3 feet by 2 feet) which will be immensely helpful to all Guiders in connection with their work with Brownies.

The subject of the Picture is "MY GARDEN"; it shows a Garden in the full glory of early Summer, and the children joyfully engaged in garden activities. It is a most charming picture by that popular Artist, Nina Brisley.

The entire Summer number of CHILD EDUCATION will be devoted to "A Garden":—Stories of the Flowers; Friends and Foes of the Garden; A little Nature Walk; How to make a Children's Garden; Poems, Plays, etc. It will provide material for innumerable Nature talks.

No time should be lost in ordering copies of this exceptionally useful issue. It can be obtained or ordered from any newsagent, price 1/- or 1/2 post free from the Publishers:—Evans Brothers Limited, Montague House, Russell Square, London, W.C.1.

Guiders who are not familiar with CHILD EDUCATION can obtain a specimen copy of a back number FREE by using the following order form or sending a post card—but in the meantime do not fail to order your copy of the Summer Number.

RIGHT OR WRONG?

Captain makes statements, some right, some wrong, such as "Thrushes' eggs are blue with black spots," "the cuckoo stays in England all the year round." All the Guides who think the statement right run to the right side of the room, while those who think it wrong run to the left. Each Guide who is correct gets a mark.

TREES AND THEIR USES.

Get pictures (out of newspapers, catalogues, etc.) of various objects such as furniture, masts and telegraph poles, wooden bridges, musical instruments and other things made of wood. Give each Guide the name of a tree and tell her to try to find the picture of the object made of the wood of that tree.

TEAM GAME.

"THE CANTANKEROUS OLD LADIES."

Required: An even number of teams.

Each team faces another team in file. One team represents the cantankerous old ladies, the other team are people hurrying to the station to catch a train. At the given signal the latter run up to the other team and thread in and out as quickly as possible without touching them. Should they do so, however, the one touched says "Tut-tut." When the team are back in their places, they change over characters and repeat as before. At the end of the game, each patrol adds up the number of times its members have had to say "Tut-tut," the team causing the fewest in the shortest time being the winners.

TREASURE HUNT.
Hide a bag of sweets or anything to represent a treasure, and give nature clues for finding it, such as:—

"Northward from here your next clue you will see,
Within the hollow of a willow tree."

"Where many rabbit homes are found
A clue is hidden on the ground."

"The next clue will be found outside a wood Beneath a tree whence squirrels take their food."

"The tallest tree from which ship masts are made Conceals the place where the next clue is laid."

And so on, varying the difficulty of the clues with the extent of the Guides' nature knowledge. It is not, of course, essential to write the clues in rhyme, but the Guides enjoy them more if this can be done. If possible, clues, different, but of equal difficulty, and all leading to the same treasure, for each patrol, as the hunt is particularly exciting if the patrols are racing to see which can find the treasure first.

THE PATH OF ## DRAGONFLIES

By C. LONGFIELD, F.R.Ent.S.

NOW is the time to make your preparations for pond-dipping. All through the summer, countless fascinating and queer little creatures can be scooped, with the aid of a stout cheese-cloth net, from any pond with a mud bottom and plentiful, growing green weeds. Any wide mouthed jam jar or deep enamel bowl will suffice for the minute insect life, but larger creatures will need a square-sided glass aquarium of 1½ to 2 feet in length, and all will need a good layer of pond mud at the bottom and several pieces of pond weed anchored by stones, which must be renewed if eaten or if they die off. Be very careful never to overcrowd your receptacles, or the inhabitants will die for want of oxygen or food, or they will turn cannibal and eat each other.

One of the most interesting and curious of the pond dwellers is the Dragonfly, which passes all its early stages beneath the water. This insect does not have a complete metamorphosis like butterflies, beetles, etc. The latter go through four distinct stages—the egg (a quiescent stage), the larva (an active, feeding stage), the chrysalis or pupa (a quiescent stage), and the adult insect (an active stage). The Dragonfly's larval and pupal stages are joined into one, and during that period it is always active and feeding, and gradually growing more like the adult dragonfly in structure. A great deal of interesting research work could be done by Guides who keep dragonfly nymphs, by which name dragonflies are known during their under-water life. A lot still awaits discovery as to the number of times a nymph casts its skin, (certainly 12 or more times), how each nymph differs in appearance and size after each such moult, whether temperature or food supply, or both, are responsible for a hastening or retarding of growth. Most dragonflies are thought to complete their full growth in a year, but they have been known to take two or three, and it is not always the largest kinds that take the longest to grow up.

There are many kinds (species) of Dragonflies, we have 42 in the British Isles, and they all differ in appearance from each other both as adults and as nymphs. Those that are closely alike, are closely related, but hybrids are very unusual in the insect world. Dragonflies are divided into two distinct groups: the large, powerful winged, stout-bodied ones, the group to which the name "Dragon-fly" was originally given; and the fragile, needle-like but still brightly coloured "Demoiselles" or "Damsel-flies," with feeble flight. The nymphs can likewise be divided into the two distinct groups. The "Dragon-fly" nymphs are flattish, drab-looking creatures, with large eyes, six moderately short legs, and a broad, jointed body tapering to a point. They creep about the weeds or lie buried in the mud, being of the same dark brown or sandy colour, and wait for any small insect, worm or fresh-water shrimp to swim near. Then the nymph shoots out a most curious horny plate, called a mask, from beneath its head, on the end of which are a pair of formidable mandibles, and with these the prey is seized and drawn back into the mouth. The mask, being hinged, is folded once more out of sight. The nymph is a formidable enemy, somewhat resembling an armoured-plated tank, and will devour almost anything that comes its way. The largest in this country is the nymph of the Emperor Dragonfly, which is 2½ inches long when full grown, and can easily dispose of a tadpole.

The nymphs of the "Damsel-flies" are rather different. They are small and slender, sometimes brown, but often bright green, and with three large, leaf-like appendages from the end of the body. They should not be kept in the same tank as the "Dragon-fly" nymphs, or they will be eaten by the latter. The "Damsel-fly" nymphs have the same mask, the same slow development of the small, humped pair of wing cases on the back, and the same sort of life-history as their larger relations, but they only grow to about 1 inch in length, are very slender, and feed on tiny water-fleas and minute gnat larvae.

When full grown the nymph climbs out of the water up a reed, post or anything handy, and from the nymphal case, which splits down the back when dry, emerges the adult dragonfly with much heaving and contortion. The process of ridding itself of the nymphal skin only takes a quarter of an hour at most, but it is two or more hours before the insect can fly away, as the whole body has to expand and harden, and the long, glassy wings when fully extended and dried are very different from the small, bunched things that first appeared. Many of the dragonflies take a few days or even weeks, before acquiring their fully mature colouring, and all have the wings covered with a glassy substance at first, which ultimately wears off. When in that condition they can often be found a long way from any water, and the inexperienced would have difficulty, sometimes, in recognising the pale insect for what it really is.

DISCOVERY

Dragonflies are quite unique among insects for the structure of their reproductive organs and the methods of pairing. When beside a pond, stream or canal on a sunny summer's day, you will often see two dragonflies flying along linked together in tandem formation. The leader is always the male, and he is lugging his wife along by clasping her firmly by the back of her neck, with the claspers he has at the end of his tail. The females have no claspers, and so can be easily distinguished in that way. They are always duller in colouring, and often altogether different in hue. Sometimes you will see a pair curled round in a ring, and flying with extreme difficulty or resting on a reed. It is in this position pairing takes place, the female being bent almost double beneath the male. Close up against the body of the male, under the second segment of his jointed tail (abdomen), is carried a part of his pairing apparatus, a position unknown in any other living creature.

The female lays her eggs in several different ways, according to her species. Some are held by the neck by the male, while the eggs are scattered as the female dips the tip of her tail into the water as they fly. Others lay on weeds, unattended by the males. Others, again, place each egg with care in a slit, made in the weed-stem or leaf below water, with the aid of a sharp ovipositor, while yet others will creep almost under water to do the same. The eggs are so small, they are extremely difficult to find. The tiny nymph, when first hatched, has many enemies ready to devour him, and it is many weeks before he can turn the tables on all his foes. Both during the nymphal and adult stages, dragonflies devour large quantities of mosquitoes and other insect pests. They are absolutely harmless to man and all his animals, being unable to sting or bite. They are very beautiful, curious and interesting creatures, and well repay a closer study of their habits.

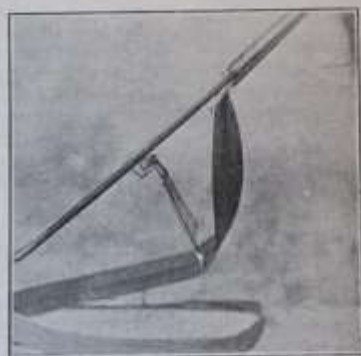

Of the 42 species known in the British Isles, some are extremely rare, some only found in Scotland, others only on the Norfolk Broads, and yet others only in the south of England. Owing to the difference in the female colouring, it is only possible for the inexperienced to be sure to which male a female belongs, by seeing them together in the tandem position. For naming your dragonflies, it is best to capture a pair, take them carefully from the net by holding all four wings together folded over the back, and then make notes of shape, size and colouring. The dragonfly will be quite un-harmful if held in this way, and on release will fly off immediately. After that, visit the nearest museum with your notes, until you get to know the different species by sight. There is no popular, inexpensive book on British Dragonflies that is the slightest good for identification purposes. You will notice, if the museum collection is a complete one, how alike some of the large "Dragonflies" (Aeshna and Sympetrum) are to each other, and also a few of the tiny sky-blue "Damselflies" (Zygoptera). Your notes will have to give minute details of the colour-patterns, before you will be able to tell the species apart.

A home for insect larvae is quite easy to keep, as the water does not need changing, and evaporation is small if the glass sides are shaded from the sun. The water-weeds (especially Canadian pond-weed) will produce sufficient oxygen, but care must be taken to renew the food supply at intervals. Gnat larvae, water-fleas and the tiny "Blood-worm" (a fly larva), can be strained from garden water butts or ornamental ponds or a bunch of weed straight from pond, river or canal, can be dipped and shaken into a bowl of water, when the live-stock it contained can be transferred to your aquarium, care being taken to remove water beetles and other dangerously large creatures that might easily devour your dragonfly nymphs. Even so, before starting an aquarium or even a series of jam jars, I recommend your buying one of the many little books on aquaria management, or borrowing one from your library.

A COMMISSIONER VISITS BUXTON

MOTORING from the south of England, emerging from warmth to cold, and finally arriving in a terrible hailstorm, one wondered if it was worth while making the effort to attend the Commissioners' Conference at Buxton at all? Would one just freeze miserably while the Great Ones of the Earth decided vast projects? Having once attended an International Conference as an orderly, I knew a few of the Great Ones by sight. Would any of the few be there to make the sea of new faces less appalling?

However, all these fears were quickly dispelled on arrival at the Spa Hotel, where two charming and efficient secretaries dealt kindly with latecomers, and where a wonderful dinner, eaten amidst a friendly, cheerful throng (including most of the Great Ones known by sight) made up for any number of snowstorms.

First impressions are often deceptive, but in this case the initial atmosphere of friendliness was intensified as day succeeded day.

Personally, I am a novice at a Conference. I have never bothered to go to Geneva, they forgot to tell me about Locarno, and the postcard telling me the time of Stresa was lost in the post. . . . so, of course, there were lots of things I didn't know. For example, I didn't know that the Commissioner for Camping not only tells fairy tales, but she takes part in them, too! Now, I know, and I feel thrilled at what might happen to the Rangers in my district if they were to set off on their bicycles! Another thing, I didn't know that when the organiser of the "Keep Fit" Movement came to the Spa Hotel she would just talk, and that we should not be able to practise physical jerks, although the temperature was at zero, and I had remembered to bring my gym shoes over from the other hotel. But, of course, knowing this about the "Keep Fit" Movement I felt less nervous about Dr. Saleeby, and it was perfectly all right, he didn't want us to embark on sunlight treatment then and there, instead, he gave us a most interesting and helpful talk on the beginning and wonderful progress of his work. I had gathered from the correspondence in THE GUIDER that uniform was always a worth while subject, so I was quite prepared for the cheers that greeted the new Ranger hat, and for the heated discussion on stockings.

The Duchess of Devonshire and Sir Arnold Wilson, each in a totally different way, provided the link between those who are actively engaged in Guiding, and those who contribute so much to our success by their approval of our efforts. The Duchess gave such a welcome to Derbyshire by her invitation to tea at Chatsworth. About 300 of us spent an unforgettable afternoon there, among the most wonderful treasures in their delightful surroundings.

Sir Arnold Wilson made us sit up and take notice of the many other organisations at work in this country and abroad. He emphasised the value of true patriotism. His internationalism seemed so broad in outline, a brotherhood between States, while we perhaps think of sisterhood between individuals.

Mr. Colquhoun's address made it clear that both good Scouting and good Guiding have a spiritual foundation.

It was most inspiring to meet and to hear the points of view of the Commissioners for the various Branches of our Movement. First-hand knowledge of Brownies, Guides, Rangers, Lones, Extensions, secretarial work, outdoor activities, International Guiding, training as carried out by the Guides de France, the Eclaireuses, and by our own Training Committee in Great Britain, was laid before us that we might assimilate, digest and in our turn lay the most applicable morsels before our own Guiders at home.

Outstandingly helpful was the talk entitled "Stock-taking." It did bring home the necessity for keeping au fait with all that is going on in the world around us. We do want our present Brownies, Guides and Rangers to find what they need in Guiding, just as we found it years ago. I am not sure that we want to change the "goods" in the shop so much as the style of the "window-dressing," which brings us to the most arresting discussion of all, the formation of the Fourth Branch. A new idea, something else to make for. May it not be just what we want? Perhaps an international link between all members of the Movement who have seen some years of service. (I still feel very hazy about the right age, in spite of the admirably conducted discussions.)

The really knotty problem of the Conference was the leakage between the ages of 14 and 16. Doubtless some parts of the country suffer more than others in this respect, and varied solutions apply to different areas. A Fourth Branch might help to solve the difficulty by keeping all the Rangers in a company more of an age, even so the difference between 14 who has just got a job and 18 who is old enough to be somebody's Lieutenant or Tawny, is as large or larger than the difference between 14 in a job and 13½ at school. Underlying all these talks and discussions two themes ran concurrently: a very real desire for progress on the right lines and an equally real desire for co-operation between each aspect of the Guide Movement.

One regret only, and that I know was shared by everyone, the sadly missed presence of the Chief Guide. She is always so inspiring and so full of confidence in the power of Guiding.

May a humble District Commissioner add how grateful we were for the hard work and organisation that made this Conference possible. It was well worth while to travel through the very worst of hail and snowstorms to reach Buxton on April 1st, 1935.

PROBLEMS.

To the Editor.

DEAR EDITOR,—The points raised in a number of the "Problems" recently published, make me wonder whether Commissioners and Guiders are sufficiently aware of the various social services existing for the purpose of helping in such difficulties.

Division and District Commissioners, at least, should be able to put the perplexed Guider in touch with the local Care Committee, in the case of children of school age, or with some settlement or moral welfare worker who could advise, in the case of the older girls.

I notice that in the Brownie Problems it has never been suggested that the Brown Owl should seek a confidential talk with the child's headmistress, who is often able to give some information about the child's background and behaviour which may not be known to the Brown Owl. It is the headmistress, also, who is often recognised by the mothers as a person whose advice is worth taking.

My professional work brings me in contact with numbers of young people, some of whom present problems like that of many, both in their home conditions and in their behaviour at work. In many of these cases, and in difficulties as a Ranger Captain, I have frequently got in touch with the moral welfare workers in the particular districts. They have invariably respected my confidence and have made friends with the girls and their families without the source of their information becoming known. I have been very grateful for the skilled help given, and thankful that I have not been compelled to tackle such difficulties single-handed.—Yours, etc.,

D. M. B.

PACK HOLIDAYS.

To the Editor.

DEAR EDITOR,—I should be grateful to Brown Owls who have taken their Packs for country holidays if they would describe some of the ways in which they have occupied their Brownies; it is sometimes a little difficult to find sufficient really interesting things for them to do, especially in the case of town Brownies who are unused to walking and easily tired by it.—Yours, etc.,

E. R. DEYKIN,

Brown Owl, B'ham Settlement Pack.

JUBILEE PHOTOGRAPHS.

DEAR EDITOR,—Any Guider of "A" detachment in the Jubilee Parade in Hyde Park on Saturday, May 11th, who is interested in the snaps taken can obtain any of the following, price 3d. (plus postage), from me at the address given below:—

1. Royal coach (King and Queen are indistinct as they were moving.)
- 2 and 3. The two following coaches in the procession. (Occupants unrecognisable and unknown.)
4. The two Guards who acted as escorts.
5. Group of Guiders and (?) Scouters (including Mrs. Mark Kerr).
6. Lord Trenchard. (Ex-police in background.)
7. Group of Guides before marching off.

Yours, etc.,

B. N. STEVENS.

Herne Hill, S.E.24.

LOYALTY.

DEAR EDITOR,—“It is to the young that the future belongs.” His Majesty's special message to children in his broadcast message will remain one of the abiding inspirations of Jubilee Day. With unerring instinct the King turned his eyes to the future.

Can it be that the Jubilee message has given Guiders a new foundation on which to build up loyalty to the second part of the First Promise? Probably some of us have recollections of talking to a shy recruit about “duty to the King.” Perhaps we decided that it meant “being loyal to our country . . . doing our best at school . . . keeping the laws of the land.” But this is all rather remote for an eleven-year-old. She wants something definite to do. The King in his message gave her an ideal to aim for: “I ask you to remember that in days to come you will be the citizens of a great Empire. As you grow up, always keep this thought before you; and when the time comes be ready and proud to give your country the service of your work, your mind and your heart.” Can we show our recruits that the service of their “work, mind and heart” represents their duty to the King?

One last point. Through the Jubilee celebrations the papers and periodicals have helped to bring the King and Queen more intimately into our lives. Can we encourage the Guiders to read about the King and Queen, and perhaps collect pictures of them? Can we tell the Guiders of such examples of the King's courtesy as his sending a message of thanks, after his return from St. Paul's, to the Metropolitan Police.—Yours, etc.,

SURREY GUIDER.

THE KING'S SPEECH.

Guiders will be interested to learn that The Times have published the speech which H.M. The King broadcast on May 6th, with his special message to the children, in card form.

These cards are obtainable from The Times, Printing House Square, London, E.C.4, price 1s. 6d. per dozen, 4s. per 50, and 7s. 6d. per 100. They measure 14 × 20 in., and would be very suitable for framing in the clubroom.

This shirt blouse has more than smartness to commend it, though that's very important. It is a Vantella blouse, and you can trust it to be perfectly tailored, to wear well and wash without shrinking.

Notice how well the masculine collar sets. That's because it's a semi-stiff curve-woven Van Heusen collar, made just like the famous ones your menfolk wear. It cannot shrink or lose its good shape. The cuffs and neck-band are made on the same principle. All the Vantella blouse designs are attractive. You can choose your favourite style—a stripe, a plain colour or white. All the colours are absolutely unfadable, of course.

PRICES:

Zephyr blouse, with one detachable Van Heusen collar to match 10/3.

Foplin-de-luxe blouse, with detachable Van Heusen collar to match 12/4.

Extra Van Heusen Collars 1/3 each.

Questions should, if possible, be sent in three weeks before the 1st of the month, if the answer is to appear in the next number.

RANGER

is interested in what she hears of the work of a hospital almoner. How long does the training last, and ought she to be a hospital nurse?

We advise Ranger to apply to the Institute of Hospital Almoners, Tavistock House (North), Tavistock Square, W.C.1, for particulars of the training, fees, etc. There is also a book published called The Hospital Almoner, price 3s. 6d., which the Institute would send on receipt of a postal order. It is certainly not necessary to be a nurse to take this training, though one naturally has a great deal to do with sick and ailing people.

QUERY

wants particulars of a mannequin's work, and how one qualifies. We advise "Query" to give up this idea and to remain where she is. The mannequins employed in the large shops and stores usually start in the showrooms and work their way up. This is much the best way as the girls so employed are always in work and not engaged for special occasions. Some dress shops do employ mannequins for special occasions at an agreed fee and a commission on what they sell, but this is temporary work only and there are often very long periods without employment. Having regard to what Query tells us in her letter, we are quite confident that this work would not really suit her, but if she is really determined to carry it through she had better make inquiries at one or two of the big shops in the bigger Lancashire towns.

PEGGY

I want to obtain a post on a liner. Will you tell me where to apply and what qualifications are needed?

Apply for information to the various shipping companies, such as P. & O., Cunard White Star, etc., etc. The main qualifications are domestic and nursing. A liner is run on most orderly methods, and one of the very best trainings for such work is the type of training in order, method, punctuality, one gets as a hospital nurse. The bigger liners are now demanding this. We understand there are usually long waiting lists for these posts, so we advise a definite training in domestic work and organisation, as well as nursing, if you really want to try.

AMBITIOUS

asks for information on dentistry as a career. She may not be able to afford the training, but she wants to have the information.

Certainly go in for dentistry if you can, an increasing number of women are making a success of this career. Matriculation or its equivalent in the certain specified subjects is necessary to qualify for registration with the General Medical Council as a student. The course, practical and theoretical, will take four years at least, and that is taking it for granted that you pass your examinations as you go along. Your first two years give you courses in practical dental mechanics, dental anatomy, general anatomy, physiology, etc., and the next two years you will be occupied with practical work, extractions, fillings, scalings. In regard to fees, the whole course will cost not less than £500 and there is the cost of maintenance. There is always the possibility of your being able to obtain help from one of the loan funds

HOPEFUL

I am 18 and want to get into the Women's Police Service. What do I do?

We are afraid our answer is "Wait for the time being." You must have reached the age of 22 before you can be considered for the Women's Police Force, but during the next four years you can be preparing yourself in all sorts of ways. Attend evening classes, your education must be up to a certain standard, and police officers should be well informed. You must also be quite physically fit, so see that you are so, and take classes in physical culture also. Your Guide work will most certainly help you, and there are such things as first aid and some knowledge of nursing. You apply to New Scotland Yard, S.W.1, for the Metropolitan Force.

GRACE

Please give me some particulars of what work there is for children. Must I train as a nurse?

We suppose you mean what is known as infant or child welfare work. There are several branches of this: Day nursery work, nursery nursing, work in an infant welfare centre, children's convalescent homes, etc. Except for nursery nursing, when you want a different sort of training, it is safe to say that in every case you will get on better if you become a State registered nurse.

GUIDE

is interested in needlework and has been told her work is good. Is there any chance of her making "anything of it"?

Would "Guide" consider dressmaking, or does she want needlework as such? If she is at all interested in this proposal, it is worth her while making inquiries at the L.C.C. Barratt Street Trade School, Oxford Street, where an excellent professional training is given in dressmaking, cutting, fitting and making, as well as embroidery and design. If she means needlework as such, she had better go to the Royal School of Needlework, Exhibition Road, South Kensington, and ask their advice as to the advisability of her taking the recognised training. She will be told there if she is likely to be expert enough to earn her living at needlework and embroidery after her trial period. If satisfactory progress is not made in the first term she will not be encouraged to continue.

ALICE

wants to go on the stage. She asks for information which might be helpful. She has done a certain amount of amateur acting and has always had flattering criticisms.

It is as well to remember that there is a vast difference between what is expected from an amateur and a professional actor. We advise Alice to get an opinion on her talents from one of the colleges for dramatic training, such as the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, Gower Street, W.C.1, or the Polytechnic School of Speech Training, Regent Street, or the School of Speech Training directed by Miss Elsie Fogerty, Albert Hall, S.W.8.

Time to Spare. By Arthur Wragg. (Allen & Unwin. 5s.)

Arthur Wragg has collected into book form the talks given on the wireless by the Unemployed. It is an important little book, because the talks are outspoken, pathetic and sincere. They are full of heart-rending courage and frank criticism. They tell us what needs doing and what is being done, and they point out gently but frankly exactly what is being done wrong.

We are a progressive Movement, and we welcome anything which shows us how our work can be made more useful. Those of us whose work lies in the distressed areas cannot need further information about the seriousness of the situation among the Unemployed. But there are others who know little or nothing and who would willingly know more. They are the people who should read this book.

Swimming for Speed: The Crawl Stroke. By W. J. Howcroft. (W. J. Howcroft, 48, St. John's Road, Seven Kings, Essex. 6d.)

Swimming has always played an important part in the life of the Guides. It is healthy, useful and amusing. Most Guides, once they can swim a little, are anxious to have their Swimmer's Badge, or their Bronze Medallion, or to pass their Endurance Test, and now, with the added interest of district and county swimming galas, they wish to learn speed swimming.

This little book by W. J. Howcroft on that fascinating crawl stroke will come as a god-send to all Guides. He tells us quite simply how to learn the Crawl, how to practise it and how to excel at it. His vast experience as a coach has shown him that crawl is a stroke for everyone and is as comfortable for ordinary swimming as for racing. Guiders who have to take swimming parades, Guides in training for galas and beginners who want to start on the right lines will all find that a close study of this short but interesting book will be extremely helpful. The illustrations are excellent and it would be almost possible to learn the stroke from them alone. It is worth a great deal more than the modest sixpence which it costs, and any Guider or Guide who wishes to have expert advice on the Crawl should buy it if possible.

Community Song Book. (Francis, Day & Hunter, 138, Charing Cross Road, W.C.2. 1s.)

The mouth-organ has attained the dignity of a league of its own with the imposing title "The National Harmonica Song Bands League." This book of songs is published specially for the League to use in its song bands (its orchestra) of mouth-organs. The harmonica, which is the grand name for a mouth-organ, is cheap; up to a point anyone can play it at the cost of nothing more than a sore lip. But it can also go far beyond that point and become a real lip. But it can also go far beyond that point and become a real musical instrument, playing a scale of no less than four octaves, every note clear. This, of course, must be learnt and practised and the introduction to the book tells you very precisely how to do it. A harmonica could be the greatest acquisition to camp.

Messrs. Evans Bros., as is their custom, are publishing a very beautiful picture, to be given away with the summer number of Child Education.

The subject of the picture is "My Garden." It is painted by Miss Nina Brisley, in full colour, and shows a garden in early summer, with the children engaged in garden activities.

The entire summer number, which was published on May 25th, is devoted to a garden. Stories of the Flowers, Friends and Foes of the Garden, A Little Nature Walk, How to Make a Children's Garden, Poems, Plays, etc. are some of the contents.

Child Education can be ordered from any newsagent, price 1s., or 1s. 2d. post free, from the publishers, Evans Bros., Ltd., Montague House, Russell Square, London, W.C.1.

The Story of Louisa Alcott. By Cornelia Meigs. (Harrap. 8s. 6d.)

The first girl to read Little Women "galloped through it and rendered a verdict breathless with enthusiasm." How many girls, and how many grown-ups, too, have enjoyed this saga of home life since then. Yet we learn in this vigorous life of Louisa Alcott that her publisher, Thomas Niles, was disappointed in the MS., and but for the enthusiasm of his niece and other girls, it might have been "hidden away with the cobwebs in that cupboard where Louisa's early failures were tossed in despair."

Older Guides, Rangers and Guiders will enjoy this book. From it we can revive our friendships with the March family—characters faithfully reproducing the qualities of Louisa Alcott's own family. What fun the Alcott family had over a play in the barn, with Louisa as author, producer, hero and mistress of the robes. Duke Roderigo was "full of splendid motives and manly virtues." No less magnificent were his boots, created out of skins by Louisa. "To walk any distance in the boots would have been quite impossible, but noblemen of Louisa's kind did not walk, fortunately; they strode a few paces to the rescue of captive maidens." It is these intimate humorous details that make this Life so readable.

What a variety of professions Louisa turned her hand to in the truly gallant task she set herself of providing for her family. It was not easy for a girl to get work in the early 'forties of last century. Louisa taught, sewed, wrote, acted as companion to invalids, tried to go on the stage, and nursed in Georgetown Hospital during the Civil War. Incidentally, it was her Hospital Sketches, extracts of her letters home written during brief respites from nursing, which first attracted publishers to her graphic, descriptive writing.

Miss Meigs gives us just enough historical details about the American Civil War and the changing thought of the day to let us picture a little the background of Louisa Alcott's life. Read this book.

Are you a Captain or Patrol Leader in search of ideas for the company meeting? Are you a Brown Owl with a pack that does not take kindly to semaphore? Are you a Sea Ranger with ideas of winning the Sea Service Badge? Are you a Guide keen to be a good signaller?

On this chart, which has been prepared by the Guide Service, you will find the following information:

On this chart, which has revolving discs both front and back, you will find a great deal of useful information, such as the deaf and dumb alphabet, how to find direction by the sun or a watch, the dots and dashes of the Morse code, some secret codes for use in scouting games, and arms which form the letters of the alphabet.

The chart can be used for self-instruction in the various codes, or can be adapted for games in the company or pack.
The price is 9d., postage 2d.

There SHOULD be a farm...

There's only one way to make sure of pure milk wherever you stop to boil tea. Take the milk along with you—and take it in a tin. Bottles are heavy, bottles may break—farms may be few and very far between. But a tin of Nestlé's Milk tucked in your pocket will save you delays and detours. It is rich creamy milk safely protected and always ready. Packed small and securely—picnic-size—specially for hikers.

CAMPING.

All applications for camp sites at Foxlease must be sent in through the Guider's District Camp Adviser, to the Secretary, Foxlease, as soon as possible. No camps of over 50 may be held.

CAMP SITES.

Applications for camp sites, giving dates and approximate numbers and with a booking fee of 2s. 6d., should be sent to the Secretary. Waddow has four camp sites with drinking water laid on. The North Rilling, Canada and Cragg Wood sites include a permanent shelter and sanitation. The usual permission forms are necessary.

GUIDERS, PLEASE NOTE.

Will Guiders please note that free places are available at both Foxlease and Waddow between October and April. Application should be made through the County Secretary, to the Secretary.

GRANTS ON RAILWAY FARES.

(a) Where a Guider finds difficulty in attending a training course at Foxlease or Waddow on account of train fare, the following reductions may be obtained:—

For return fare exceeding £2, a grant of 5s. will be made.
For return fare exceeding £3, a grant of 10s. will be made.
For return fare exceeding £4, a grant of £1 will be made.

(b) In cases where a Guider, who wants to go to a particular type of training week, finds that no such week is available at a time possible for her at the training centre nearest to her home, but is available at the other training centre, the difference between the two fares may be refunded by Headquarters.

In either case the application for rebate should be made through the Guider's Commissioner direct to Foxlease or Waddow.

FOXLEASE COTTAGES.

The two cottages at Foxlease are to be let by the week to Guiders requiring a rest or a holiday. The larger one contains two double bedrooms and one single, a sitting-room furnished by Canada, a bathroom and a kitchen. The charge for the cottage is 84 guineas per week in summer, and 9 guineas per week from October to March.

The "Link," which is the bungalow furnished by America, contains three bedrooms, a sitting-room, a bathroom and a kitchen. The charge for the "Link" is £2 12s. per week.

These charges include light, coal and oil. Guiders cook and cater for themselves entirely, although, if necessary, a woman can be engaged to cater, cook and clean at the rate of 30s. per head per week, or merely to cook and clean at the rate of 10s. per hour, in addition to the above charges.

A charge of 6s. deposit fee is made for booking the cottages, and this is forfeited should the booking be cancelled. Guiders wishing to bring their cars can garage them at Foxlease by arrangement, at a charge of 5s. per week or 1s. per night. It is not necessary for Guiders staying at the Cottages to wear uniforms. Any enquiries should be sent to the Secretary, Foxlease.

FOXLEASE GARDENS.

FOR SALE.—Chrysanthemums (early and late flowering rooted plants) at 3s. per doz.; Dahlias, bedding varieties, at 6s. to 10s. per dozen carriage paid. All named varieties. Please apply now to the Head Gardener, Foxlease Gardens.

The Lady Delia Peel.
Lady Read.
Mrs. Sampson.

In Attendance.

Miss Montgomery.

It was reported that a message of loyal greeting from the Guides of the Empire had been sent to His Majesty The King.

Mrs. Chitty was appointed Assistant Commissioner for Lones. The Hon. Mrs. Copland Griffiths was appointed as delegate of this Association to the Congrès des Guides Catholiques Belges.

On the recommendation of the Weekday Activities Committee of the Methodist Sunday School Department, Mrs. Leslie F. Church, Division Commissioner for Streatham, was appointed Liaison Commissioner between this Association and the Methodist Sunday School Department.

A new pre-enrolment test for Rangers was approved. Full details of this will be given in the September number of THE GUIDER.

A new style of Ranger hat was approved. This will not be on sale until July 1st.

It was agreed that Rangers be given permission to wear either a triangular tie as Guides do, or a shaped tie like Guiders, but the whole company should wear the same type of tie.

It was agreed that permission to wear brown shoes and stockings be given to Companies who prefer them to black. All Guides in the Company must wear the same colour.

It was agreed to appoint a small sub-Committee to deal with further questions of uniform.

Arrangements in connection with the Service to be held at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, on June 23rd, were discussed and approved.

It was decided to hold a County Commissioners' Conference on December 11th.

It was decided that the cost of the Guiders' Indemnity Policy again be borne by the Association for the period from October, 1935, to October, 1936.

The report from the Training and Camping Committee was submitted and approved.

Routine and financial business was transacted.

The date of the next meeting was fixed for Tuesday, June 25th, at 2.30 p.m.

AWARDS

For Good Service to the Movement.

Special Service Badge. Beaver.

Miss Travers, Hon. State Secretary, Tasmania.

Medal of Merit.

The Lady Audrey Anson, Division Commissioner, Bridgwater.

For Gallantry.

Patrol Second Joan Timson, 1st Garston Company.

On the evening of December 6th, 1934, Joan Timson, aged fourteen, a Second in the 1st Garston (Hertfordshire) Company, was spending the evening with a friend, Gladys Watts, and helping her to look after her young brother and sister, as her mother was ill in hospital.

Peter, aged ten years, had been put to bed and was playing with his toys by the light of a candle. Gladys and Joan were downstairs. They were the only people in the house, as Mr. Watts had gone to see his wife in hospital.

Suddenly the girls heard screams. They ran upstairs and found Peter on the landing with his nightclothes in flames. Joan immediately ran for a rug and extinguished the flames, after which she ran for assistance. While Peter's still smouldering clothes were being removed, Joan telephoned for the doctor. Peter was taken to hospital, but died later from the shock.

Joan acted with great courage and promptitude. She is to be warmly congratulated on the way in which she kept her head.

Badge of Fortitude.

Guide Madeline Roberts, 3rd Abergele, Manchester Sanatorium Company.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL.

On Tuesday, April 30th, the Annual General Meeting of the Council of the Association was held at Imperial Headquarters, at 12 noon.

In the absence of the President, Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal, and the Founder, it was proposed by the Chief Commissioner and seconded by Sir Percy Everett, and carried, that the Chairman of the Executive Committee, Dame Helen Gwynne-Vaughan, take the Chair.

The following message from Her Royal Highness was read by the General Secretary:—

"As I am unable to be present at the Annual Meeting, I take this opportunity of congratulating the Guides on the progress made in 1934.

"During the year the number of Guides in the Empire and in the world has increased by 23,293, bringing the total up to 1,228,162.

"I attended two rallies, the Yorkshire West Riding (North) and the Anglesey and Carnarvonshire. The spirit of happiness and endeavour which animated the activities there convinced me that the Guide Movement, with its ideals of friendship and service for others, continues to appeal to the girls of to-day.

"I was interested to hear that the Guides of Great Britain were represented among twenty-six other countries, at the International Handicrafts Exhibition held in Switzerland during the Eighth World Conference. I hope that we shall continue to interest Guides in all handicrafts, so that they may always find enjoyment in their leisure.

"During the past year 81,977 Guides went to camp. I hope that the number of Guides enjoying these holidays will be larger in 1935 and that the Guide Movement will increasingly encourage physical fitness among its members."

The Chairman proposed that a message be sent to the President expressing the deep appreciation of the Council of the continued interest and wise guidance of Her Royal Highness.

In moving the adoption of the Report and the audited Statement of Accounts, the Chairman referred to the friendliness which was spreading throughout the world and which had been contributed to so largely by the Founder and the Chief Guide, who had carried the spirit of friendliness so far afield by their Mediterranean Cruise and the World Tour which was now taking place.

The Chairman also referred to the wonderful efforts which had made it possible for Guiding to spread to such separated and different countries as Persia and Peru, and to remote regions of the Empire.

The Hon. Treasurer, Sir Percy Everett, in seconding the adoption of the Report, referred to the satisfactory financial position and quoted figures giving the number of proficiency badges sent out during the year, the number of letters and parcels issued by Headquarters, and the number of customers served in the various Headquarters shops.

The Lady Blythswood and Mrs. St. John Atkinson were elected to fill the two places on the Executive Committee vacated by Miss Ward and Miss Dillon.

It was unanimously agreed that a cable be sent to the Founder and the Chief Guide expressing the regret of the Council at their absence.

It was agreed to send a cable of condolence on the loss of their son to Lord and Lady Clarendon.

An interesting discussion was held on the reason for the decrease in numbers in this country. Mrs. Birley said that this question had been raised at the Buxton Conference when several reasons for the decrease had been discussed.

The suggestion was made that education offers so much more to the child of to-day; many children go on to the secondary schools, their school work is increased and they are often too tired to go out again in the evening.

Home influence has changed a great deal in the last few years, and the child of to-day receives a far larger allowance of pocket-money than was usual in the past. The present-day child, being in a position to pay, prefers to buy amusements which cost no personal effort, rather than to manufacture her own toys.

There is a definite leakage between school and Ranger age. Children leave school at 14 and feel too grown-up to continue to attend their Guide companies, but are not old enough to be enrolled as Rangers.

There is also the difficulty of getting girls of leisure who can become Guiders. So many people have to earn their living to-day and simply have not the time to give to Guiding.

It was suggested that slum clearance has been a factor in the decrease in numbers, since on many new housing estates there is no provision for halls, in which to hold meetings.

The further suggestion was made that the dwindling birth rate might have something to do with it, as all juvenile organisations appear to be suffering in the same way.

It was also pointed out that in the beginning the parents did not want the children to join, so they did; now the parents do want them to join, so many do not.

The Chairman pointed out that this whole question was under very careful consideration at the moment, and it was hoped that the coming year would show some improvement.

PRESENT:

Dame Helen Gwynne-Vaughan, G.B.E. (in the Chair), Mrs. Arkwright, Miss Baden-Powell, Mrs. Percy Birley, Mrs. Blyth, Mrs. Arthur Bowlby, Mrs. Cadbury, The Hon. Mrs. Copland-Griffiths, Mrs. Houston Crawford, Sir Percy Everett, Mrs. Grotian, Miss Haldane, Miss C. Law, The Lady Luke, Miss Michaels, The Hon. Mrs. Bertram Mitford, The Lady Delia Peel, The Viscountess Snowden, Mrs. St. John Atkinson, The Dowager Lady Swaythling, Lady Thomas, The Lady Vivian.

INSURANCE.

GUIDERS' INDEMNITY POLICY.

All Guiders within the United Kingdom and Ulster are insured under the Guiders' Indemnity Policy, the premium for which is paid by Headquarters.

This means that all Guiders are protected against any legal claims arising from accidents to individuals in their care, or from damage to property caused by those in their care. It is not an accident policy for the Guides themselves, and the accident must be considered to be due to negligence on the part of the Guider for a claim to be made.

PERSONAL ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE.

AS FROM MAY 1ST, 1935, THE PREMIUM FOR THE ANNUAL RATE OF THIS INSURANCE WILL BE REDUCED TO 30s. per 100. For the summer months (Thursday before Easter to the end of September, inclusive) the rate will be reduced to 25s. per 100.

Headquarters holds the Policy of the Personal Accident & Sickness Insurance, and strongly recommends that all Guiders and Guides should be insured under it. No application forms are required, but anyone wishing to insure against accidents and sickness at any time, when actively Guiding, in camp, on bikes or in the clubroom, should apply giving full particulars to the General Secretary, Imperial Headquarters, 17-19, Buckingham Palace Road, London, S.W.1.

The following information should be clearly stated:—

- (1) Full name of unit to be insured.
- (2) Total membership including Guiders.
- (3) State whether the Insurance is required on an annual basis or for the period of Summer Camps only.
- (4) If the Insurance is required for camp only, state numbers, including Guiders going to camp; date of departure and return; address of camp; place of assembly from which all risk will commence.

THE SCHEDULE OF COMPENSATION.

1. Death by accident within 3 Calendar Months from date of accident—any one Individual £100.
2. Total Loss of Sight by accident within 3 Calendar Months from date of accident—any one Individual £100.
3. Total Loss of Sight of one Eye within 3 Calendar Months from date of accident—any one Individual £50.

Medical Expenses incurred by or on behalf of any one Individual following an accident sustained whilst under the control of any Officer or other Authorised Official, including cost of conveyance by Ambulance or other means of transport from scene of accident to Hospital or Home where necessarily incurred.
Limit any one Individual £20.

THE GUIDER

8. Medical Expenses (including Doctors' and/or Dentists' Fees, Medicines and/or Extra Rent, including cost of conveyance by Ambulance or other means of transport to Hospital or Home) where necessarily incurred by or on behalf of any one Individual by reason of illness (common to both sexes) contracted during participation in any recognized or official indoor or outdoor camp, including any week-end camp. Provided always that the illness is diagnosed or the indisposition be such as to require initial treatment during period of camp, but in no case shall this Benefit extend to infectious and/or Contagious Diseases developing after the individual concerned has left camp.

Limit any one Individual £10.

Limit in all at any one camp up to 250 Individuals ... £100

Over 250 Individuals up to 500 Individuals ... £200

" 500 " " 750 " " " £300

" 750 " " 1,000 " " " £450

" 1,000 " " " " " " £500

The cover afforded by this Section shall only apply during the Summer Months from the Thursday before Easter to September inclusive, and shall not apply during period of camping abroad unless specially agreed in consideration of an extra premium to be paid in advance.

9. Out-of-pocket travelling expenses necessarily incurred, by or on behalf of any one Individual, for attendance at Hospital or other Place of Treatment following a valid claim recoverable under Benefit 7 above.

Limit £2.

10. Out-of-pocket travelling expenses necessarily incurred, by or on behalf of any one Individual as a result of being left behind by reason of an accident or illness sustained in camp and following a valid claim recoverable under Benefit 7 or 8 above.

Limit £2.

11. Weekly Compensation as a result of Temporary Total Disablement by accident or illness as defined in and constituting a valid claim recoverable under Benefits 7 or 8 above.

Limited to 20 weeks and to exclude the first seven days.

10s. per week per Individual.

This Benefit shall be restricted to those who have attained the age of 14 on the date on which the accident or illness occurs.

REDUCED RAILWAY FARES.

The following arrangements for reduced fares have been made by the Railway Clearing House.

Applications must be made direct to Headquarters.

Permission to camp must be obtained before applying for railway vouchers. Issue of cheap railway tickets by Headquarters can only be made to warranted Guiders, and does not imply that permission to camp has been given.

Guiders are reminded that the application form must bear the railway stamp before it can be exchanged by Headquarters for a voucher. This is to show that the local station-master approves of the date on which the party is to travel.

Applications must be sent in to Headquarters not later than one week before the date on which it is proposed to travel.

Cheap tickets for parties of Guiders travelling to camps and rallies will be available under the same conditions as ordinary tickets.

The rates are not available for parties travelling to and from London and the port on their way to the Continent. Fifteen-day excursion tickets are often available at about the same rate in connection with Continental bookings. Further information can be obtained from Miss Maunsell, 28, Gloucester Terrace, W.1.

The reductions are based on the standard fares and not on the summer rates.

The Railway Companies have requested that although Rangers over 18 (minimum 8) do not get any reduction on the summer rates by obtaining Headquarters vouchers, they should continue to use them, as there are certain advantages attached that are not applicable in the case of ordinary summer tickets.

All arrangements for the conveyance of equipment, whether by goods or passenger train, must be made with the Passenger Department.

Guiders should notify the Railway Company in good time the day they wish to travel so that sufficient accommodation can be arranged. Exactly the same procedure should be carried out for the return journey.

Wherever possible, heavy equipment should be sent in advance and the Railway Companies are willing to accept all camp equipment in advance of the party travelling without additional charge, i.e., at the same charges as when accompanied by passengers. It should be ascertained from the local Station-master when the luggage should be taken to the station to ensure that there is no delay and it is essential that each package is securely fastened, plainly labelled and addressed.

If Guiders are able to journey to camp mid-week, it will conduce to their own comfort and greatly relieve the week-end rush on the railways.

Camp Advisers in large towns would also help the railways if they could arrange that companies who are travelling in the same direction on the same day travel by the same train. Better arrangements can then be made for reserved coaches.

THE DISTRICT RAILWAY.

Guiders wishing to travel at cheap rates on the District Railway should make the usual arrangements with the station from which they intend to travel, but the voucher should be presented at 55, Broadway, S.W.1, previous to the date on which it is intended to travel, when the tickets will be issued.

Vouchers cannot be dealt with at the station booking offices of the District Railway.

COMMISSIONERS' CONFERENCE, BUXTON.

The following were left at the Spa Hotel and have not been claimed:—

Two pairs of gauntlet gloves (one pair with wrist strap); one navy blue woven scarf; one pair of spectacles case. Will the owners apply to Miss Gardner, Wallfields House, Hertford, for them.

SCOTTISH HEADQUARTERS SHOPS.

In addition to the Headquarters Shop at 12, Melville Street, Edinburgh, a new shop has now been opened at 25, Gordon Street, Glasgow, for the convenience of West of Scotland Guiders and Guides.

SCOTTISH HEADQUARTERS.

Everyone connected with Guiding in Scotland is requested to write for all requirements to the Secretary, Scottish Headquarters, 12, Melville Street, Edinburgh.

THE HEADQUARTERS RESTAURANT.

The Restaurant at Imperial Headquarters is open to all Guiders and Guides and their friends.

Luncheon is served from 12 to 2 p.m. Tea from 3.45, and parties are catered for by arrangement. Tables can be booked in advance. Telephone: Victoria 6860.

The Restaurant is not open on Saturdays.

Called to Higher Service

Why

GENOZO

means a healthy mouth

Tooth trouble is more than painful and expensive. Neglected teeth and gums may poison your whole system and undermine your health. Genozo protects you against this. It contains a valuable bacterial emulsion which the gum tissues absorb. That is why it strengthens and keeps your gums healthy as well as making your teeth pearly white.
